Donny, I really don't know what to say. You are really a great guy in every way. You're a great dancer, smart, good looking and have a great personality. I'm so glad we were in Drama Together this year. It's been almost as fun as last year. We sure have been through a lot together: Hollies, "Fours"-play, Rock Hill, Drama T & H etc. You really are great in every way. I never will forget your hickey dialogue. Na K!a! You cutie! I hope you have a great summer, but be good. Don't do anything I wouldn't do! We'll see ya at the beach the "first week".

ACADEMICS

Administration works with individualistic student body

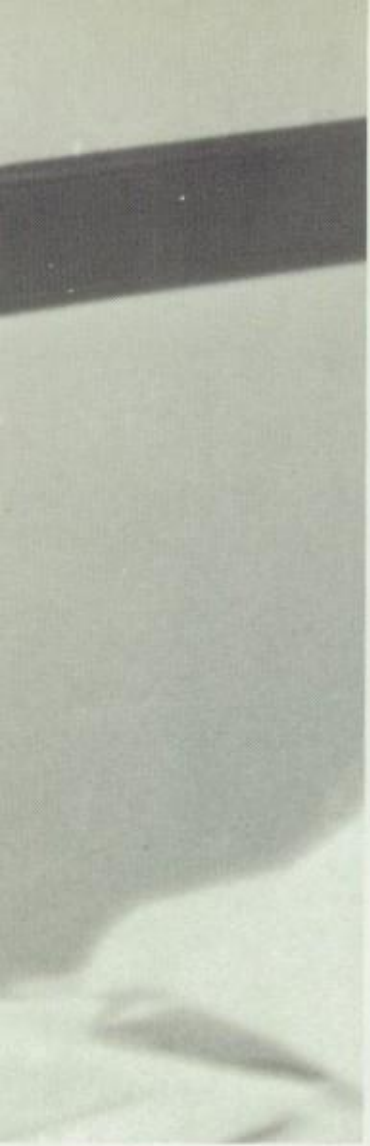

During the trying times that have faced Greenville High, the administration has insisted on keeping a regular class schedule at all times, maintaining that the education process must not be interrupted. This year Principal Donald L. Linn, Assistant Principal Willis H. Meadows and Dean of Girls Miss Ruth Boyd have been faced with decisions concerning student government that have not occurred before.

Running a smooth main office is the job of secretaries Mrs. Kathryn Guy and Mrs. Emma Lou Cothran, as secretary Mrs. Mary Wardlaw manages business in the counselors' office. Senior counselor Miss Sarah Meredith, junior counselor Mrs. Corine Klein and sophomore counselor Miss Helen Galloway continue to arrange schedules, set up early dismissals and fill out college applications for their students.

Mr. Linn, principal, eyes the clock as another day at GHS ends.

Miss Helen Galloway inquires about a student's absence.

Secretaries Mrs. Mary Wardlaw and Mrs. Kathryn Guy "talk shop," momentarily disregarding the party on the telephone.

Assistant Principal Willis H. Meadows calls another unsuspecting parent.

Miss Ruth Boyd, dean of girls, checks the absentee sheet for the day.

Students learn literary, grammatical techniques

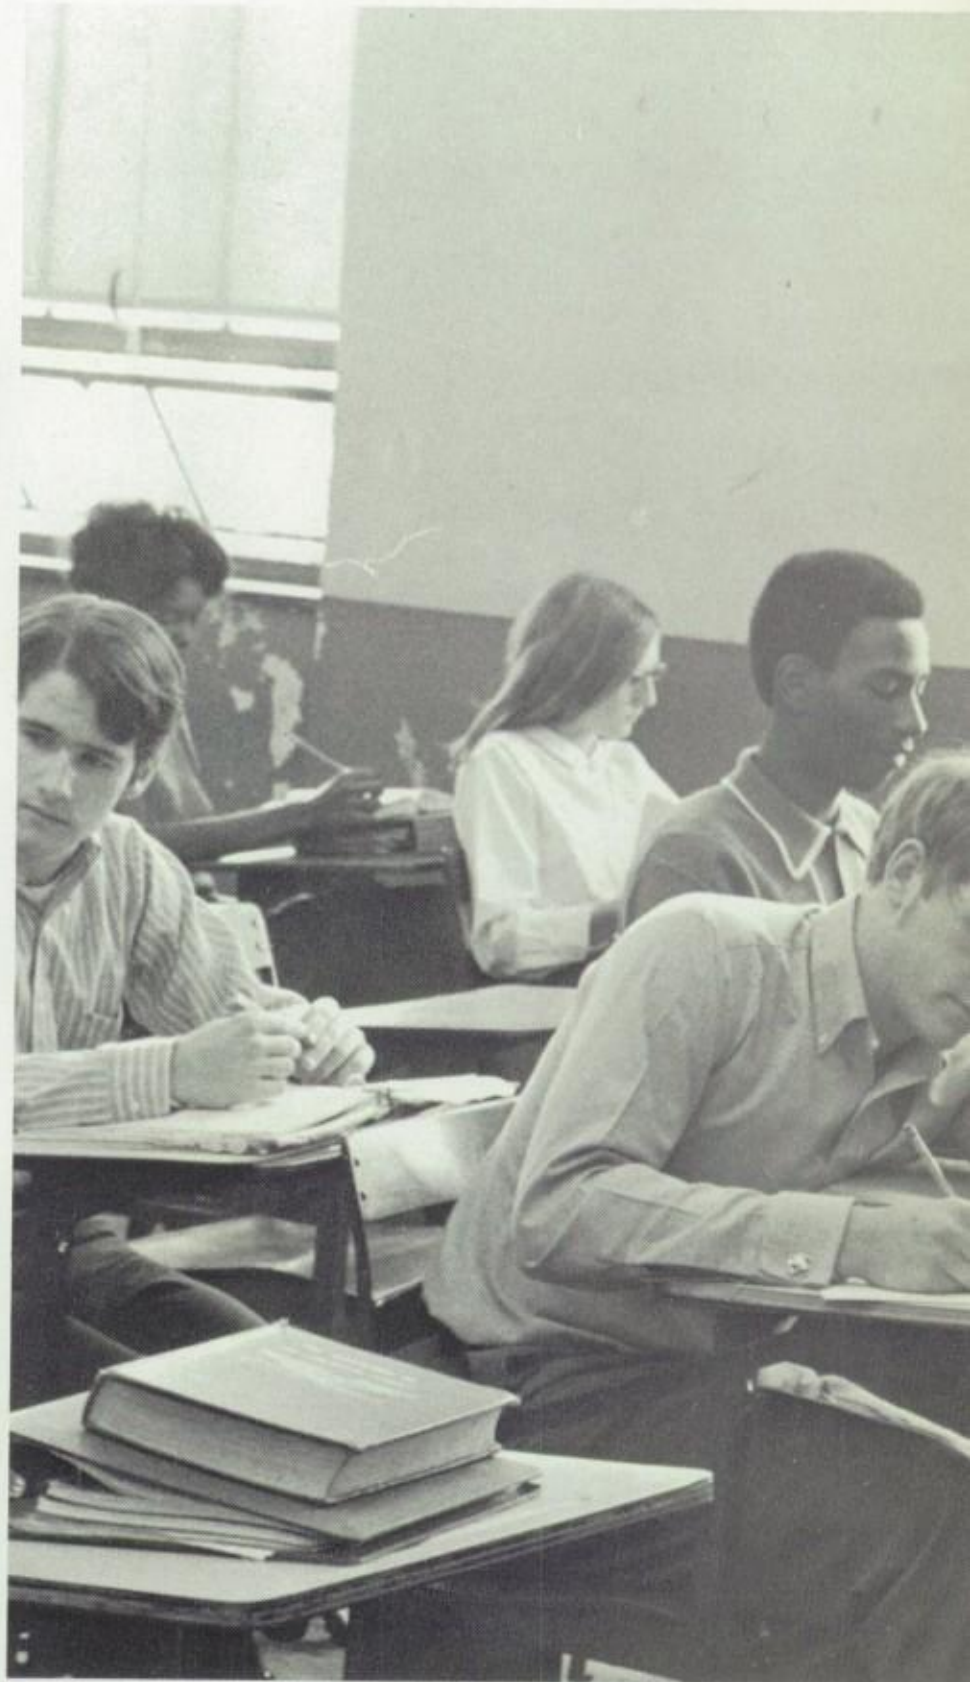

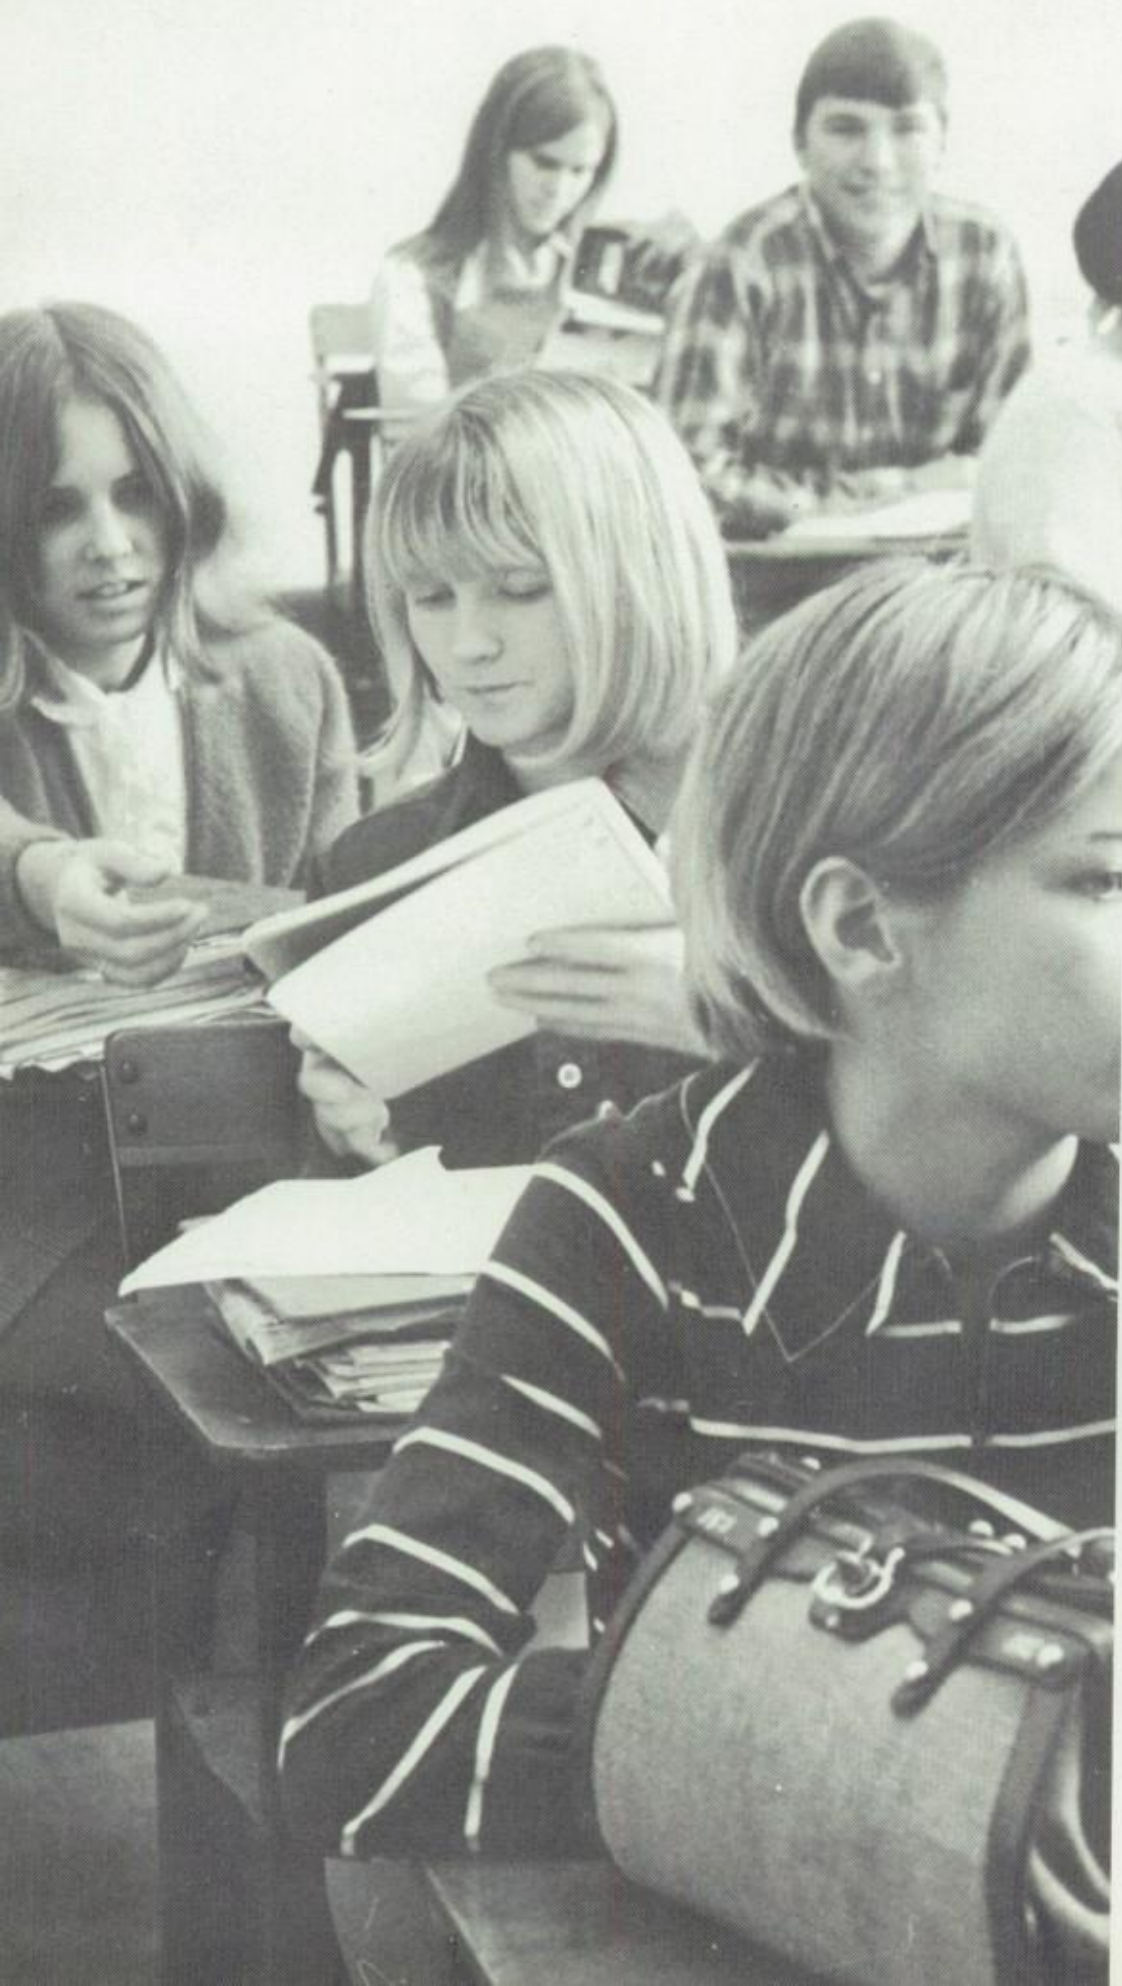

English is the only subject that all GHS students have in common. Their high school English career begins with the study of short stories. Later on in the sophomore year they faithfully study "Julius Caesar" and "Silas Marner." In between, sophomores gain an appreciation of different styles of poetry.

Junior year correlates United States literature with United States history. Juniors study essays, short stories, plays, novels and poems written by American authors during the two centuries of our country's existence. Their work is paralleled by numerous projects and book reports.

Paula Parrish is not up to creating any masterpieces today.

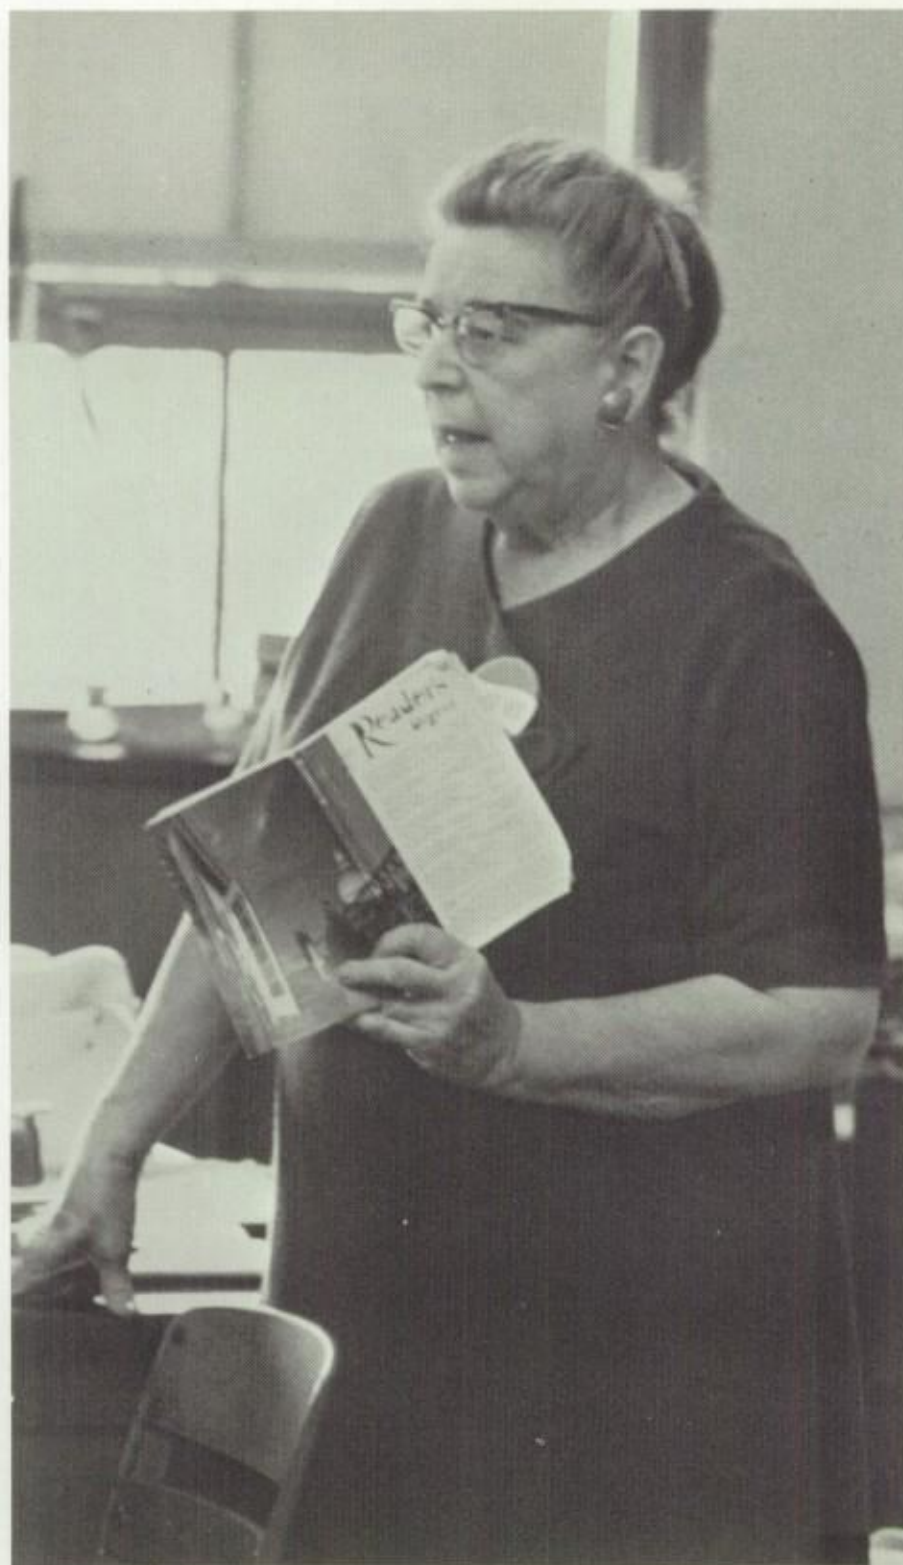

The beginning journalism class spends second period preparing themselves for future work on the newspaper and yearbook staffs.

One of Mrs. Alice Lonnecker's English classes catches up on their vocabulary notebooks.

Miss Winifred Rogers explains that short stories from Reader's Digest are not acceptable.

Seniors study Chaucer's Canterbury Tales and its importance to the English language.

Upperclassmen study history of English prose and poetry

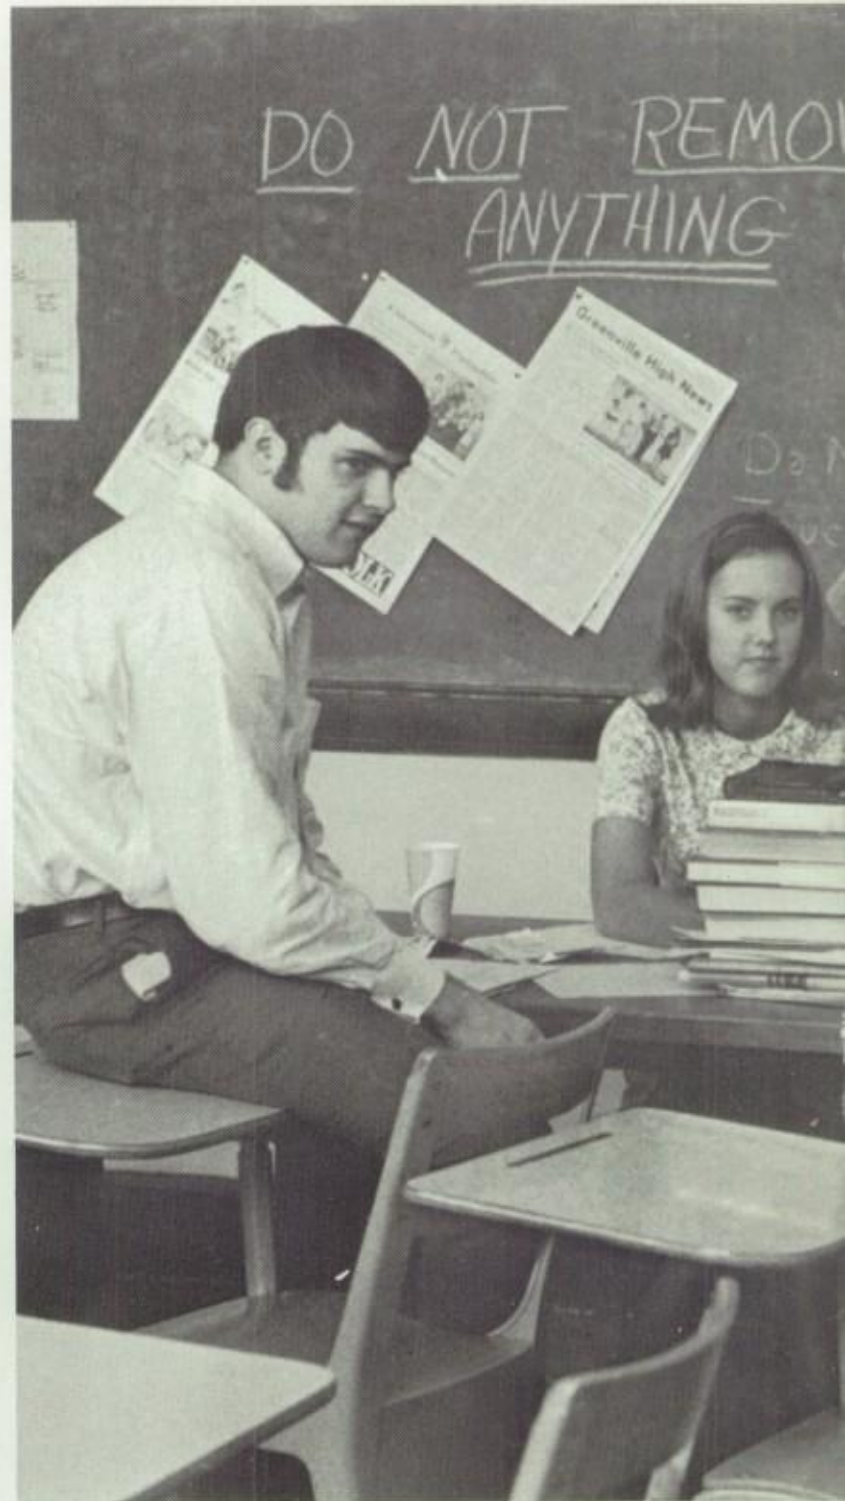

"Whan that Aprille with his shoures soote . . ." Geoffrey Chaucer is alive once again in senior English classes. His literary spirit lives on through excerpts from "The Canterbury Tales," oral reports, memory work, discussions and creative projects.

Three plays, "Macbeth," "Pygmalion" and "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," are also studied by seniors, along with works of outstanding English authors from the fourteenth century to the twentieth century. These studies are interspersed with creative writing and parallel reading. Mrs. Sara Payne, Miss Winifred Rogers, Miss Myrtle Tanner and Miss Mary Wilds are senior English teachers.

Students in Miss Wilds' class discuss the personality of Lord Jim.

Mrs. Sara Payne reviews sentence structure with one of her senior English classes.

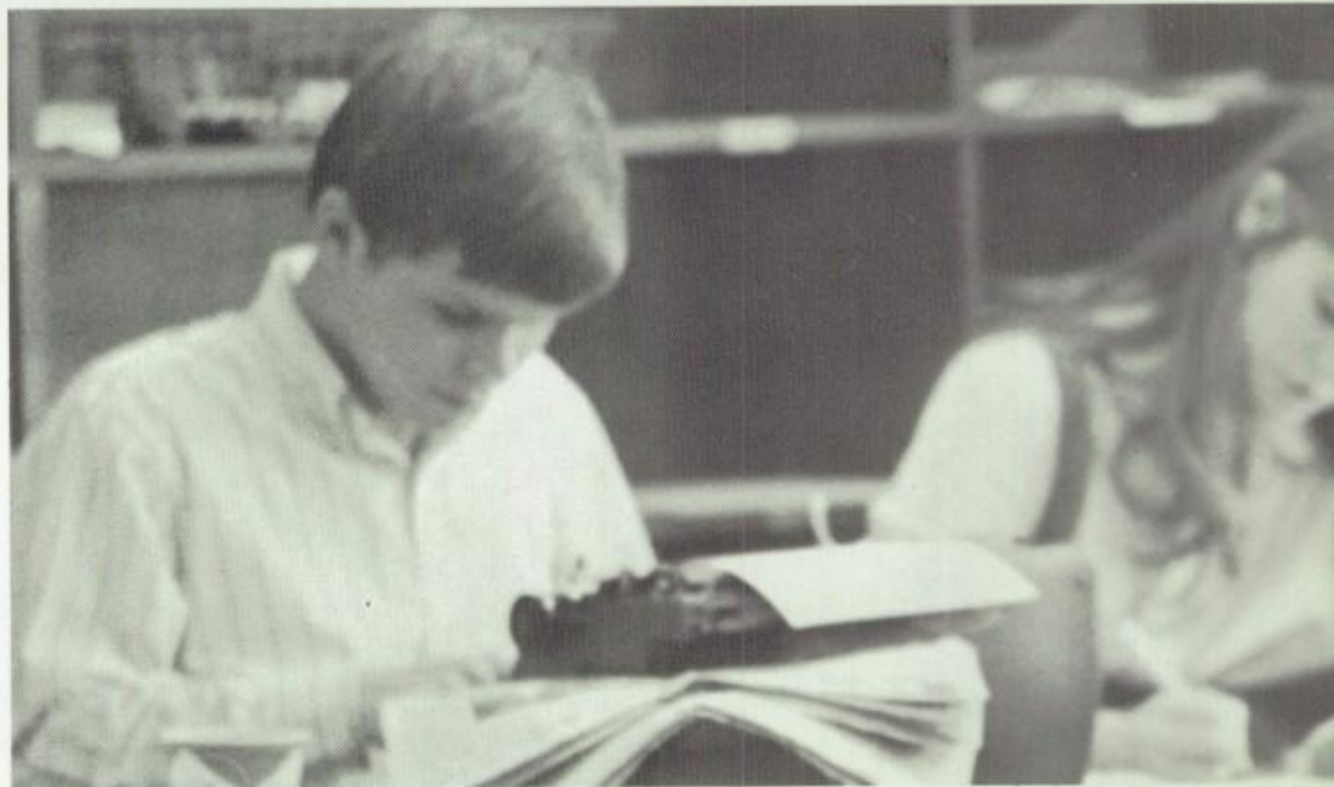

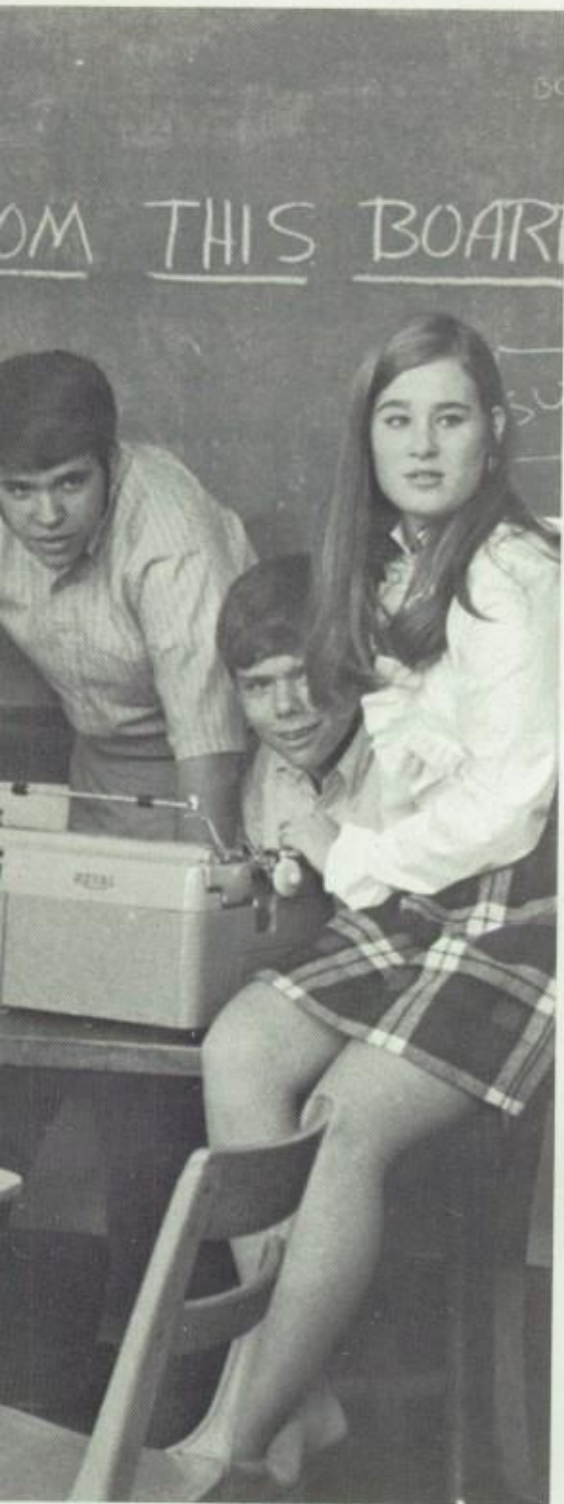

Joe Earle, Debbie McQueen, Vincent Bridges, Steve Wooten, and Gail Cook listen to advice as they discuss High News policy.

Joe Earle laughs at another one of Jean Perrin's editorial suggestions.

Members of the High News staff work towards Friday's paper.

Staff produces twenty-five issues of weekly Greenville High News

When a newspaper staff produces the only high school weekly in the state, one would suspect that it is a very busy staff. How true! Working on three editions of the paper at a time keeps each of the twenty-three members of the Greenville High News staff working constantly.

These students' work includes such activities as interviewing students and teachers; writing news, editorial, feature and sports stories; copyreading, proofreading and doing page layouts.

Feature editor Laurel Peace and news editor Tootsie Peters do some last minute copyreading.

Business manager Genie Beasley "goes over the books" for the journalism department.

Advisor Mrs. Alyce Atkinson stands by as Patty Lee, club-faculty editor, and Ann Poe, business manager, alphabetize picture packages.

'Naughty Nine' meet deadlines, proudly present 1970 Nautilus

Deadline! This is a word that can produce stomach ulcers and tension headaches in high school students. The meeting of five such deadlines is necessary for the completion of one Nautilus. This year nine staff members and one new advisor, Mrs. Alyce Atkinson, met their deadlines with all the usual rush and confusion and tension. As a result, the Nautilus will reach 1200 persons this spring.

Besides the responsibility of his or her own section, each staff member also participates in selling ads, taking class pictures, designing a cover and choosing a beauty queen judge.

Nancy Orders, student activities editor, Kathy Kenneally, underclass editor, and Sally Wyche, senior editor, work in cramped quarters in the Nautilus room.

Kathy Kenneally is unconcerned with the unpaid bill that has drawn the attention of Sally Wyche and Tommy Traxler.

Academics editor Dotti Dennis and editor Tommy Traxler seem to be in complete agreement for a change.

Miss Roberta Lee explains cube roots to her Algebra II class.

Math classes work with polygons, problems

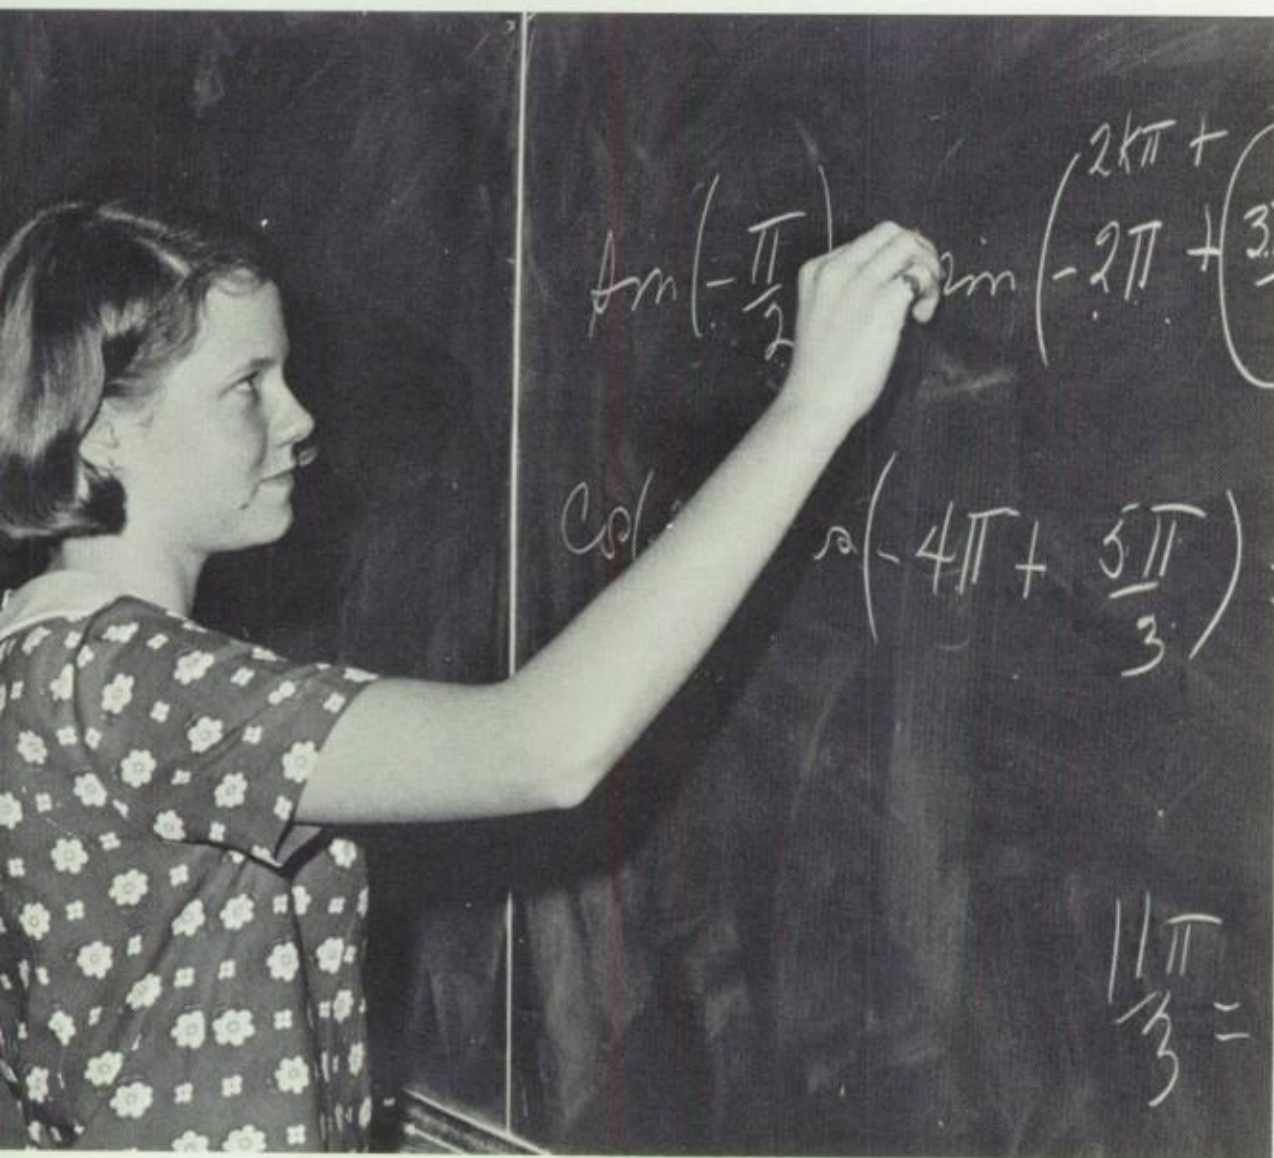

"A deck of cards contains four suits of thirteen cards each. What is the probability of a bridge hand of thirteen cards being all of one suit?" Unusual problems such as this are not uncommon in the work of advanced mathematics students who study permutations, combinations and probability.

Geometry and algebra students wrangle with the measurements and properties of triangles, rectangles, parabolas and the like. These and other mathematical skills are necessary to be a success in today's world.

Miss Lillie Edwards discusses a math grade with Susan Vaughn.

A math student puts a trig problem on the board for the benefit of the class.

Miss Joan Whitehurst explains a theorem to her class.

Algebra courses get new texts, new slant

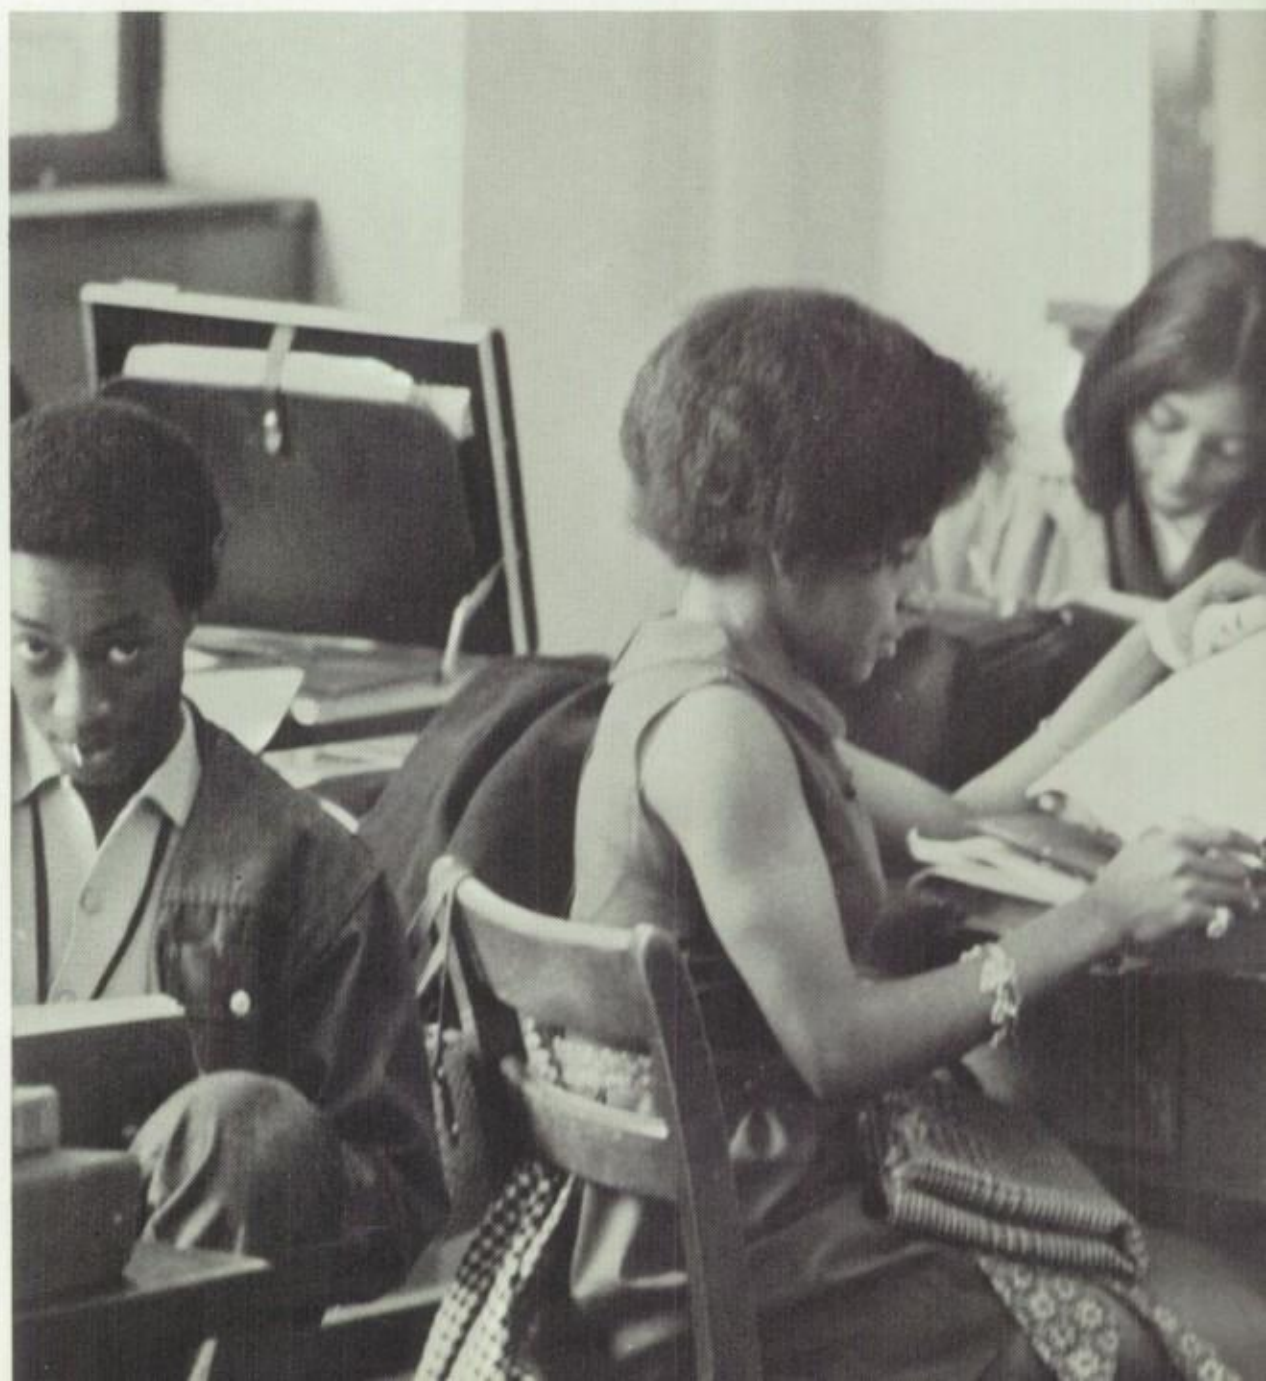

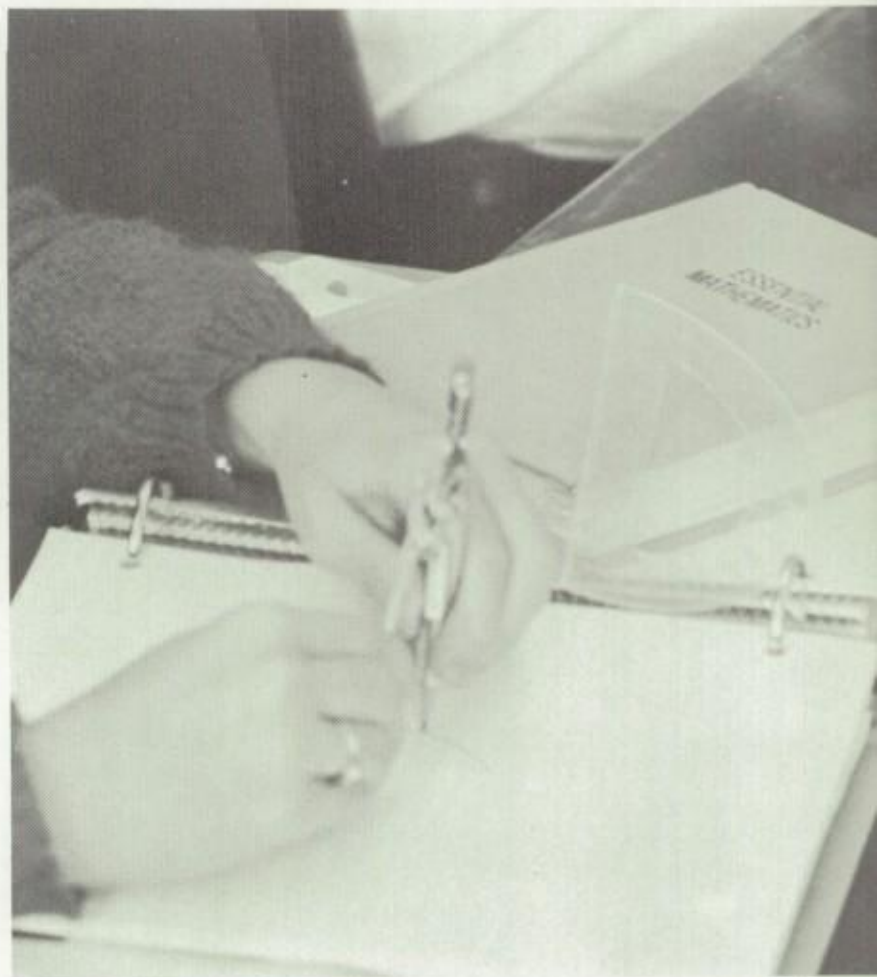

Emphasis on the historical development of mathematics has been added to algebra classes taught by Miss Roberta Lee. The reason is to put the achievements of mathematics and mathematicians in perspective.

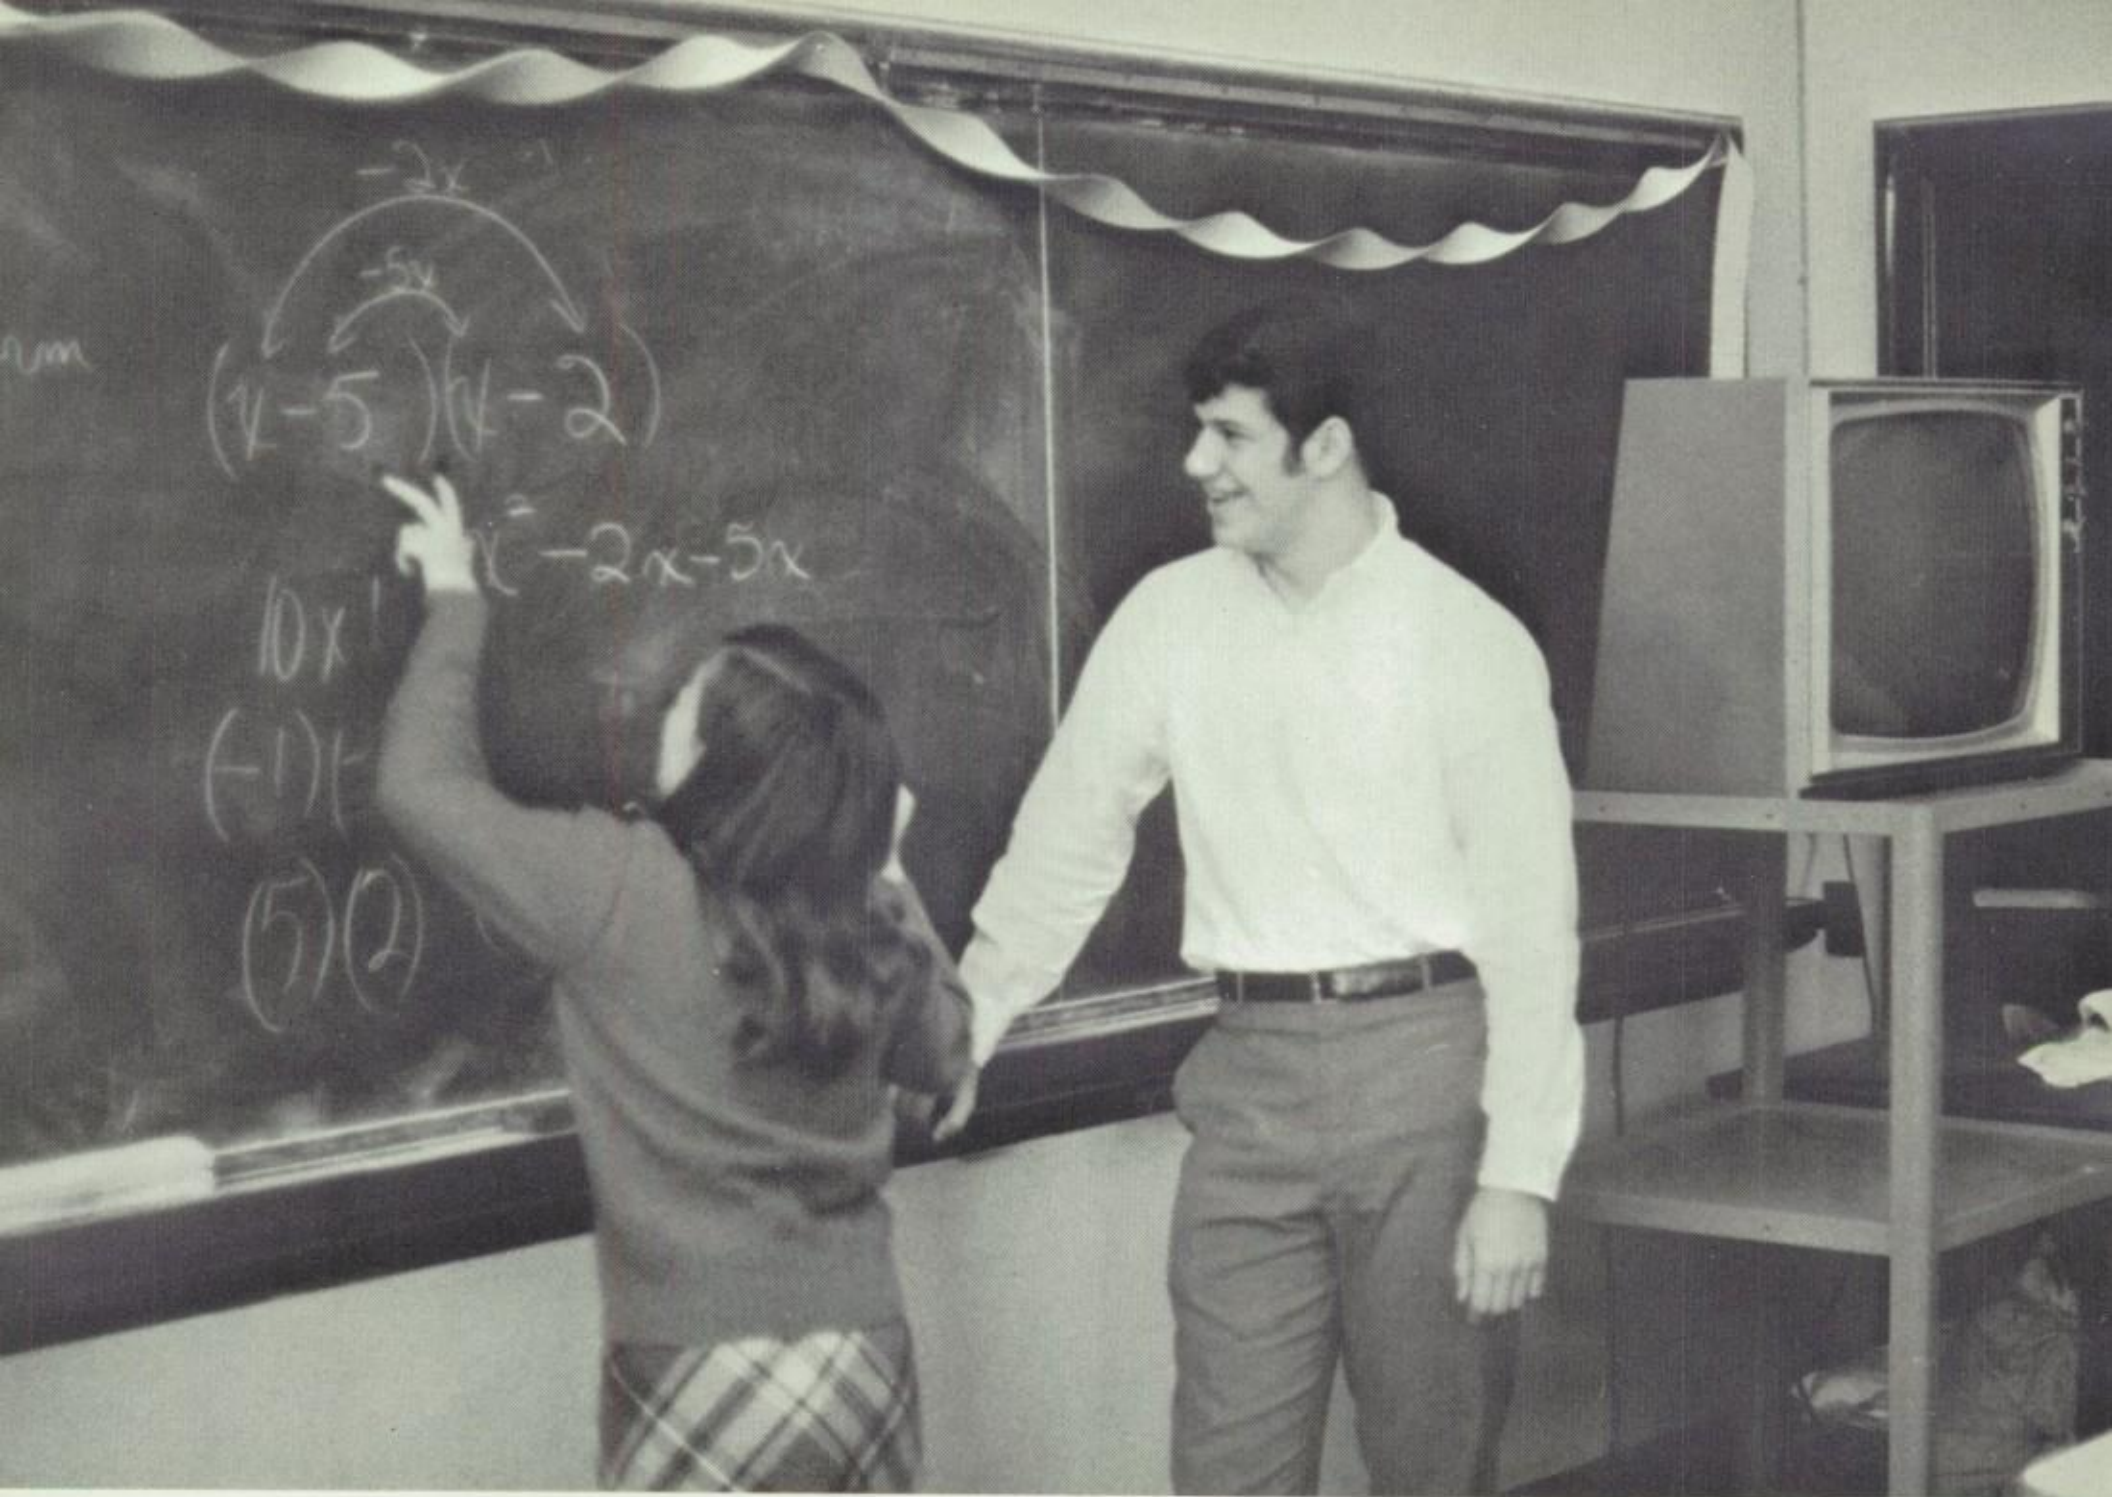

A unified Algebra III and trigonometry course, accompanied by a new text book, is another addition to the math department. The goals of this department are carried out by nine teachers, of whom two, Mr. Richard Woollen and Miss Lillie Edwards, are new.

A conscientious girl constructs concentric circles.

Students plod on in Mrs. Catherine Moore's general math class.

A math test is not usually such a pleasant experience.

Billy Harakas and Denise Minix attempt to carry out a math problem.

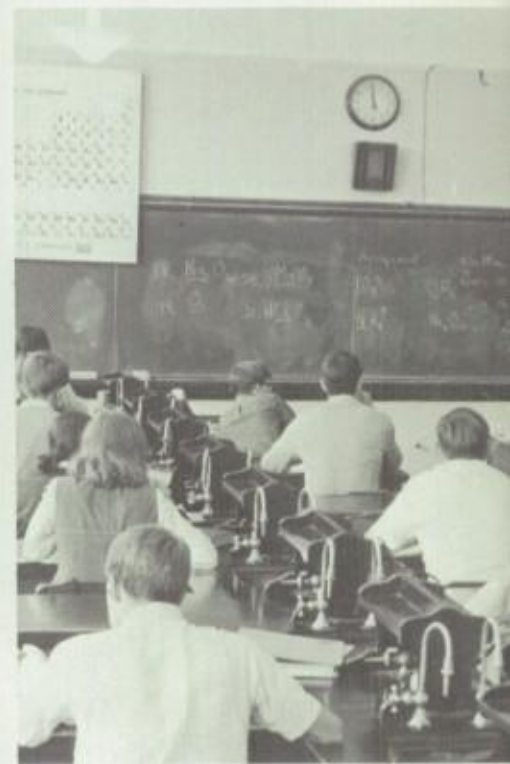

Math students seem to ask more questions than any others.

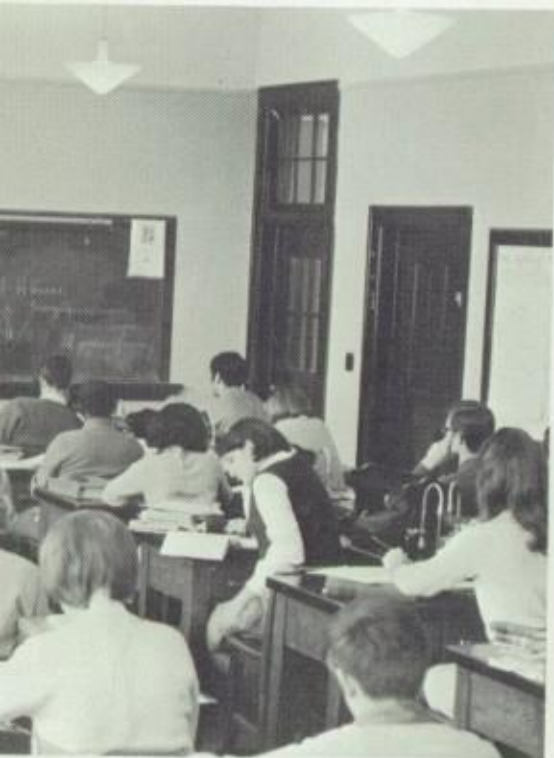

Mrs. Elisabeth Tripp watches silently as her class fills out lab reports.

Mrs. Hilda Griffith explains to her class mistakes made on their chemistry test.

Students investigate moon project

The twentieth century is a century of science; a century of medical and technological advancements. This year the greatest scientific achievement of all has occurred, and as a result, most science classes are studying and analyzing the moon project.

Research, lab and demonstration methods are applied in order to learn by doing. During the year, biology, chemistry and physics students performed many experiments, which sometimes could be smelled or heard all over the building. Winning science projects were entered in the annual Health and Science Fair at Textile Hall in the spring.

Tommy Plowden, Mark Taylor, Tommy Little and Sally Coker study the complexities of chromosomes and genes.

Larry Harrison focuses on some unruly bacteria.

Students perform dissections, work out equations, formulas

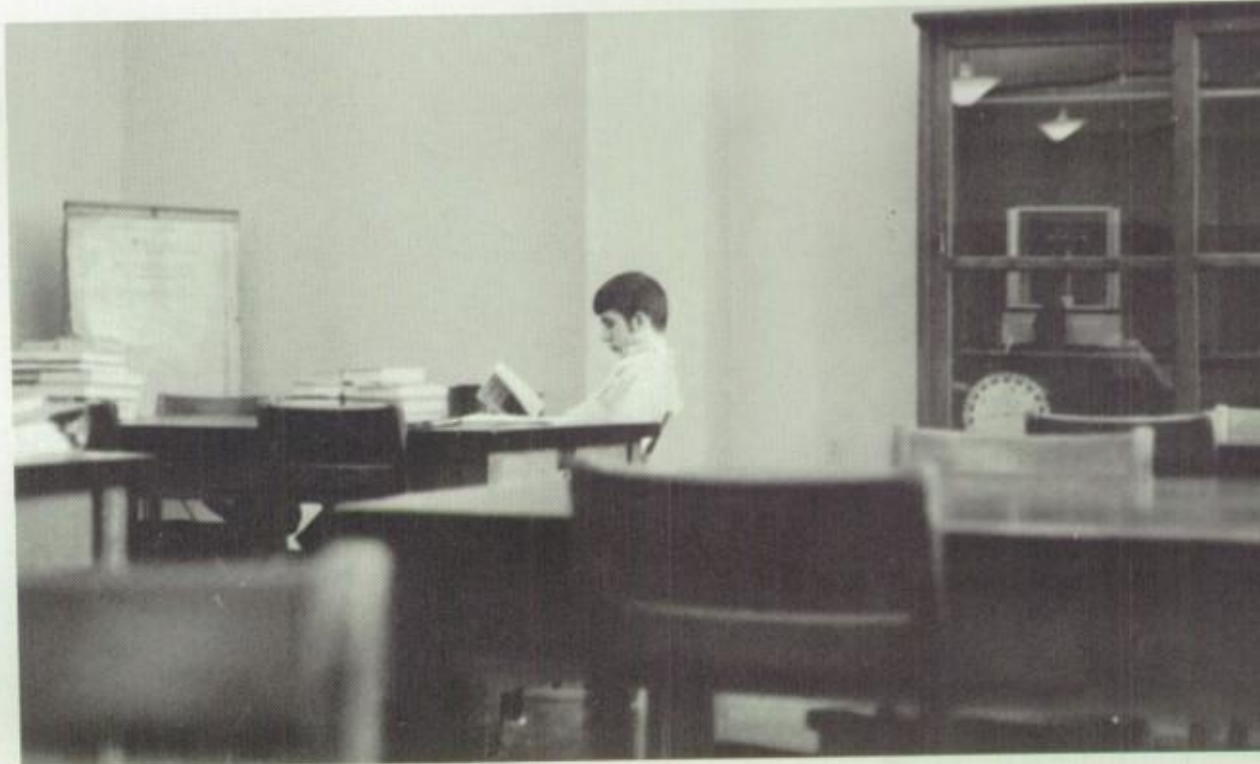

Biology students endeavor to understand themselves and their environments. Dissections are the highlight of the year, especially for the weak-stomached. The biological structures of the earthworm, crayfish, starfish and frog were all examined, discussed, diagrammed, reported on and then thrown away.

Formulas, equations and symbols are common knowledge to chemistry and physics students. Their advanced studies prepare them for a possible science major in college and consequently a job in one of the numerous fields of science open today. The active science department is headed by Mrs. Margaret Walters.

Ricky Branyon is lost in a world of his own in the physics room.

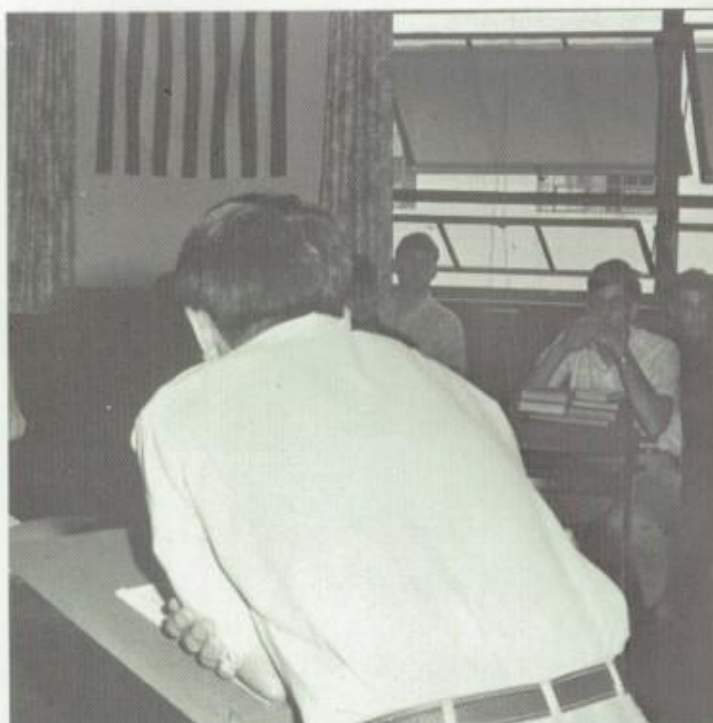

Anne Dyson investigates her biology lab partner's work.

Betsy Moseley conducts an experiment in Mrs. Moore's physics class for seniors.

Chemistry students under Mrs. Hilda Griffith took zinc and acid and produced hydrogen.

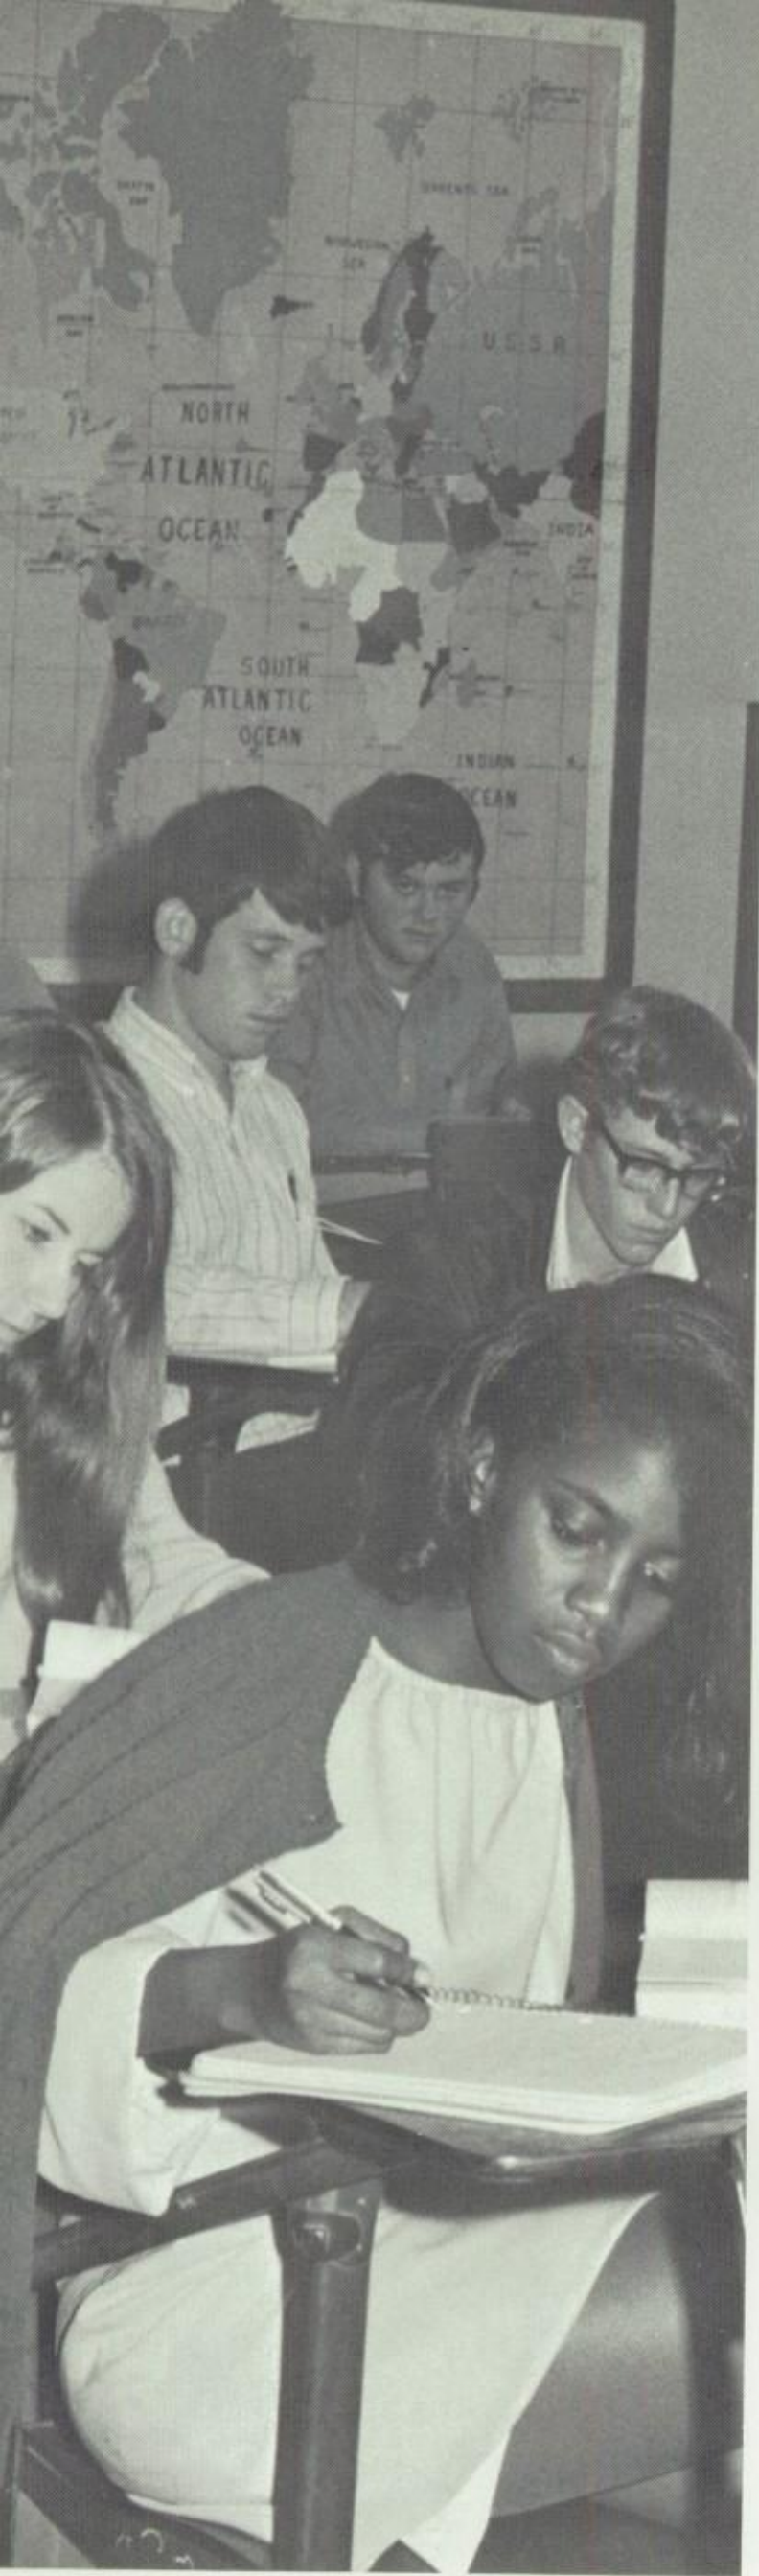

A psychology student reports his findings on drug abuse to the class.

Mrs. Ellen Hendricks lectures to her class on important dates in American history.

Sally Baumgardner relaxes before the bell rings to begin her history class.

Students study fundamental concepts, ideals of America

A unit on Afro-American history has been added to United States history courses this year. The general program of these courses is to inform students of basic American concepts and ideals and also the steps which have led to our country's becoming a "social welfare" state as it is today.

"Profiles in Courage" films are viewed regularly by history classes, along with various other films, film strips and transparencies. Students round out their knowledge of American history by doing several research projects during the year. Teachers of United States history are Mr. Ken Childs, Mrs. Susan Eggleston, Mrs. Ellen Hendricks, Mrs. Elizabeth Peden and Mr. Richard Woolen.

One of Mrs. Ellen Hendricks' U. S. History classes takes an "open book" test.

"What we have here is a lack of communication!"

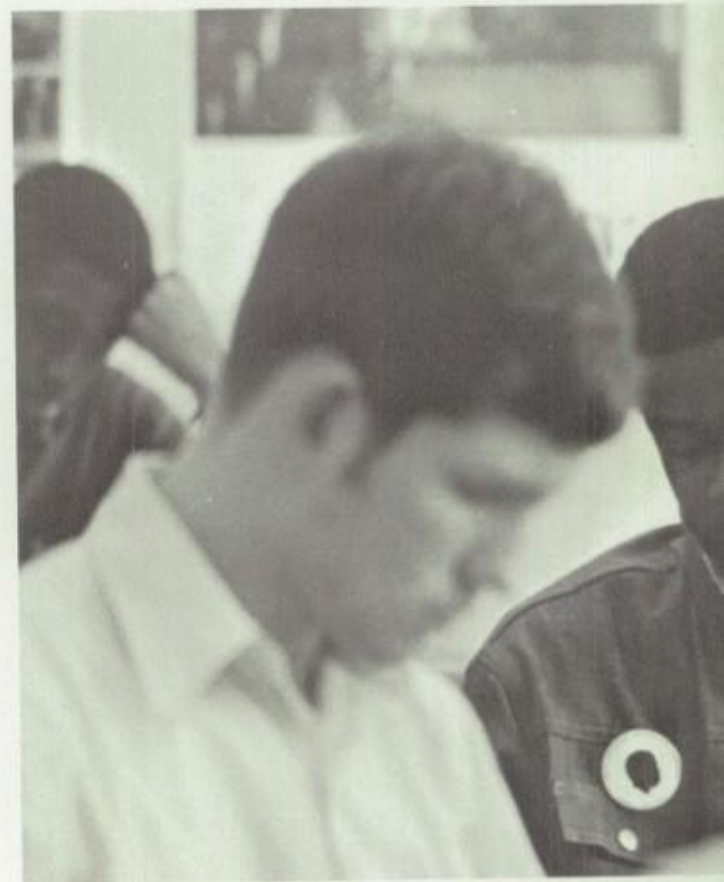

Social study courses cater to seniors

Sociology, political science, economics, comparative government and psychology are social studies courses offered to seniors who are interested in the characteristics and problems of modern society. World history and Far East are offered for those interested in societies past.

An extensive research project on the use and abuse of drugs was carried out by Miss Helen Dickson's psychology classes first semester. Sociology students, under Mr. Ken Childs, supplemented their class work with parallel reading, visits to City and County Council meetings and talks by prominent citizens of the Greenville community.

Rhett Leonard and Claude Winestock take their world geography course seriously.

Miss Helen Dickson uses a bit of psychology on her classes.

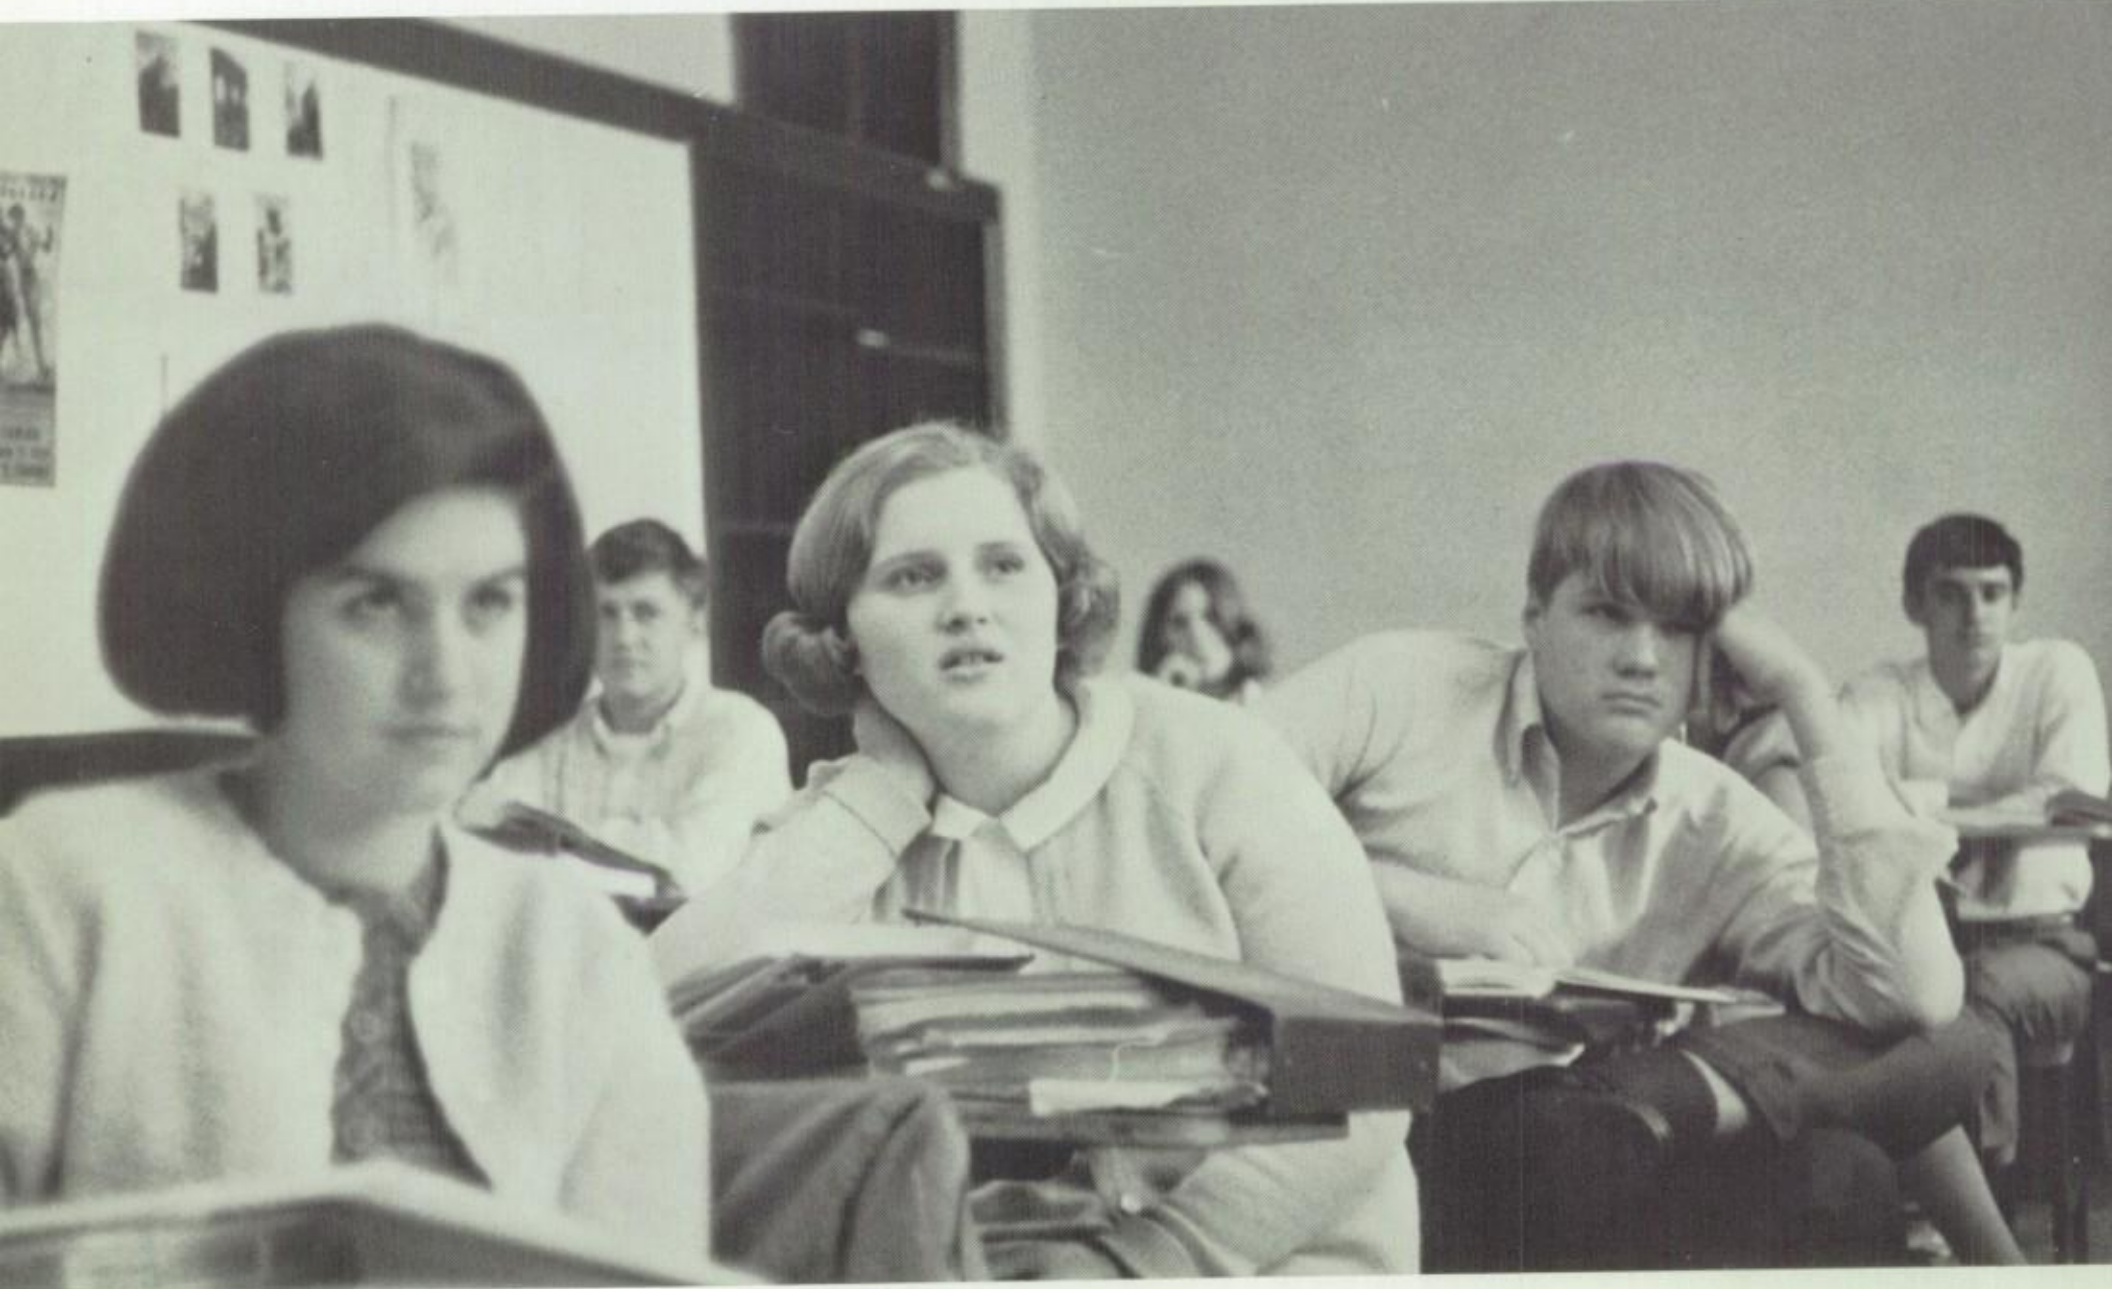

Bert Winterbottom, director of the Greenville County Planning Commission, addresses a sociology class.

At the moment, world history is not the first subject on Leslie Owens' mind.

Virgil's humor is often found in his Aeneid, which Latin IV students translate.

Spanish students under Miss Marion Salter listen for instructions concerning homework.

Foreign languages have great importance

"Latin is of great importance to law, medicine, architecture, teaching and engineering," according to Miss Martha Frances Morgan. "It also teaches students an awareness of their cultural heritage."

Mrs. Virginia Layman believes that the purpose of Spanish courses is "to teach each student to speak enough Spanish in order to be able to communicate thoroughly and easily with any Spanish person. It is hoped to become vital in dealing with Spanish countries in every phase of life such as politics, commerce, travel and more."

A Spanish notebook is carefully scrutinized and graded by Mrs. Enid Eberhardt.

Miss Martha Frances Morgan supervises a Latin study-in.

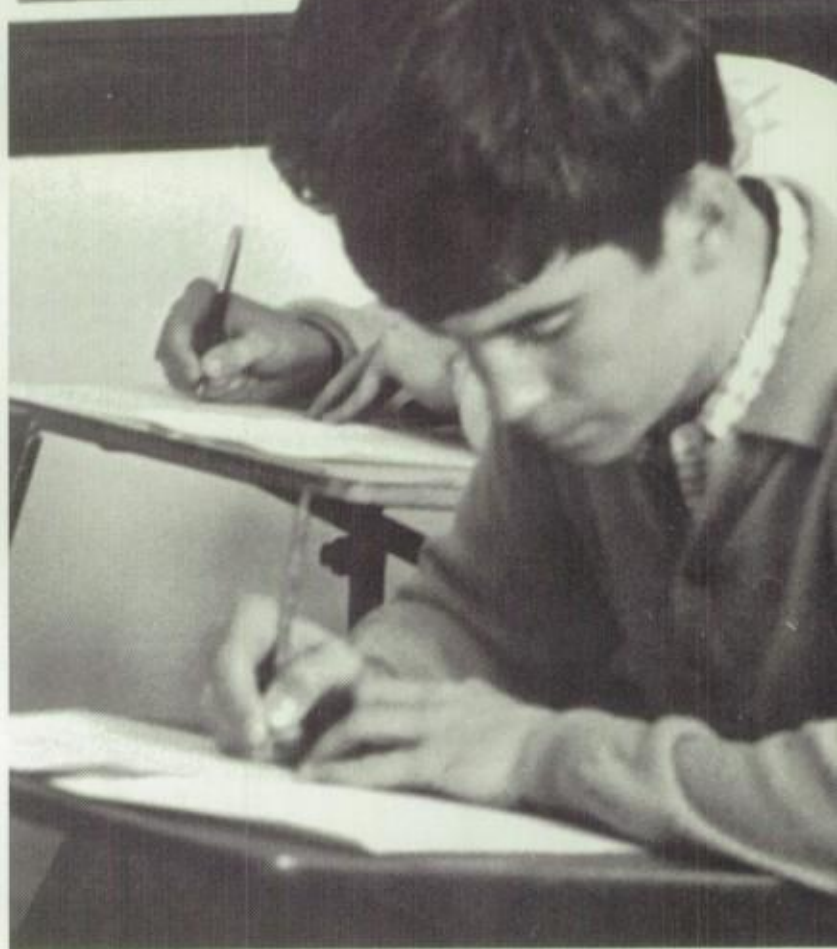

Language students view films, practice dialogues

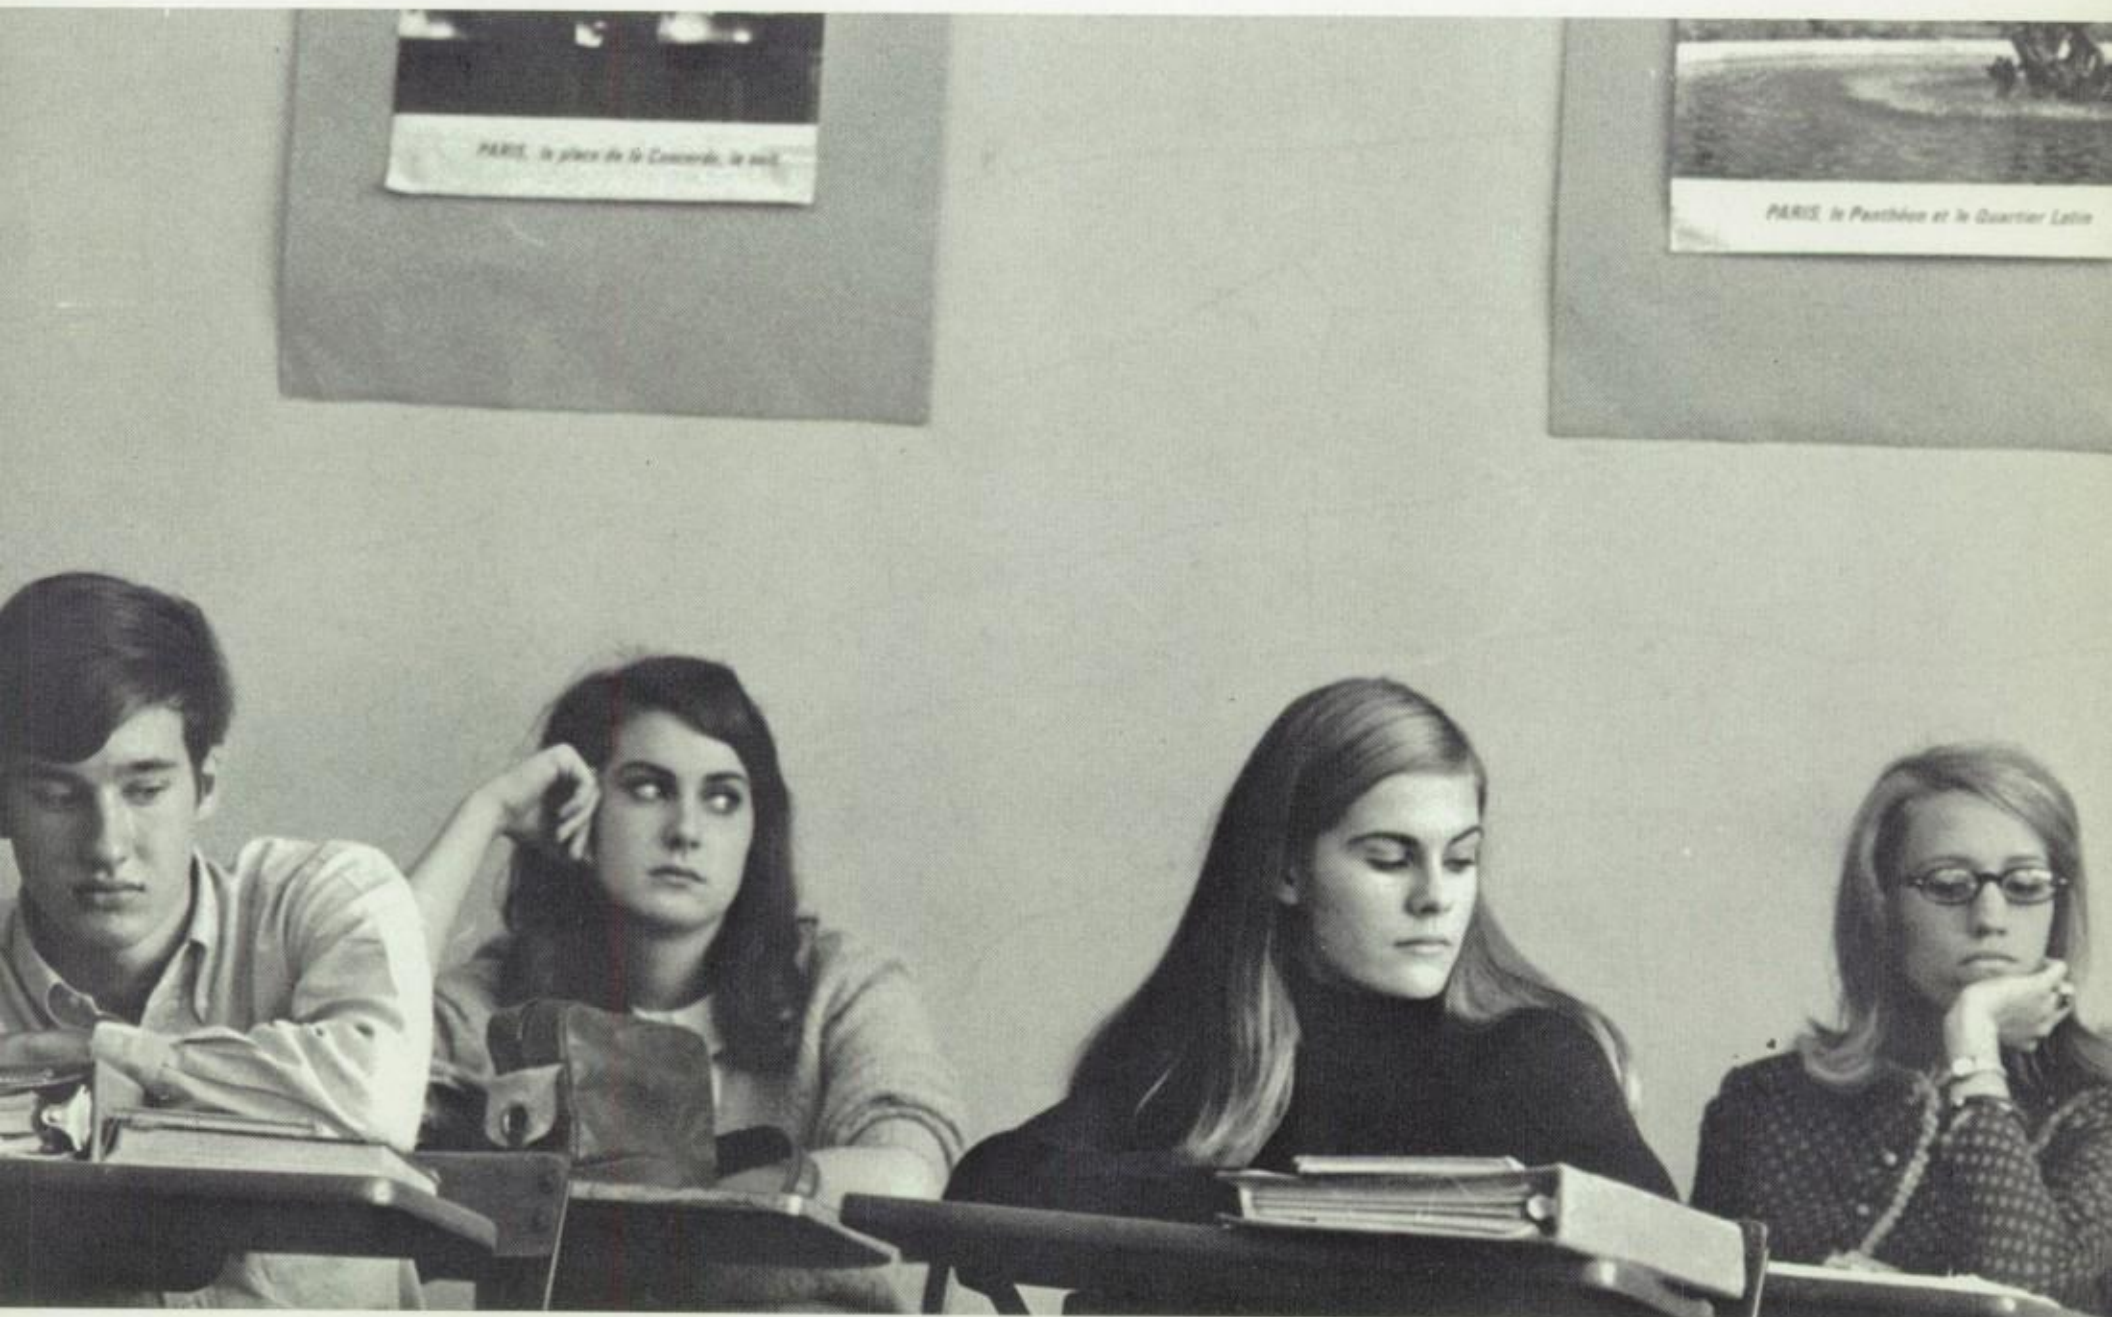

Films of the Rhine, taken by librarian Mrs. Mary Witters, were viewed by Latin students this year. This was one feature in a broad-ranged program which included several films and speakers. The main emphasis in the four Latin classes is on translations.

In French and Spanish classes the emphasis lies on speaking the languages. Dialogues, repetitions and question and answer drills are the principal teaching methods used by two French and three Spanish instructors. The study of French and Spanish culture, geography and politics add interest to the curriculums.

David Heidt studies the language of the matadors.

Members of Mrs. Bobby Wilson's French II class listen to original dialogues given by their classmates.

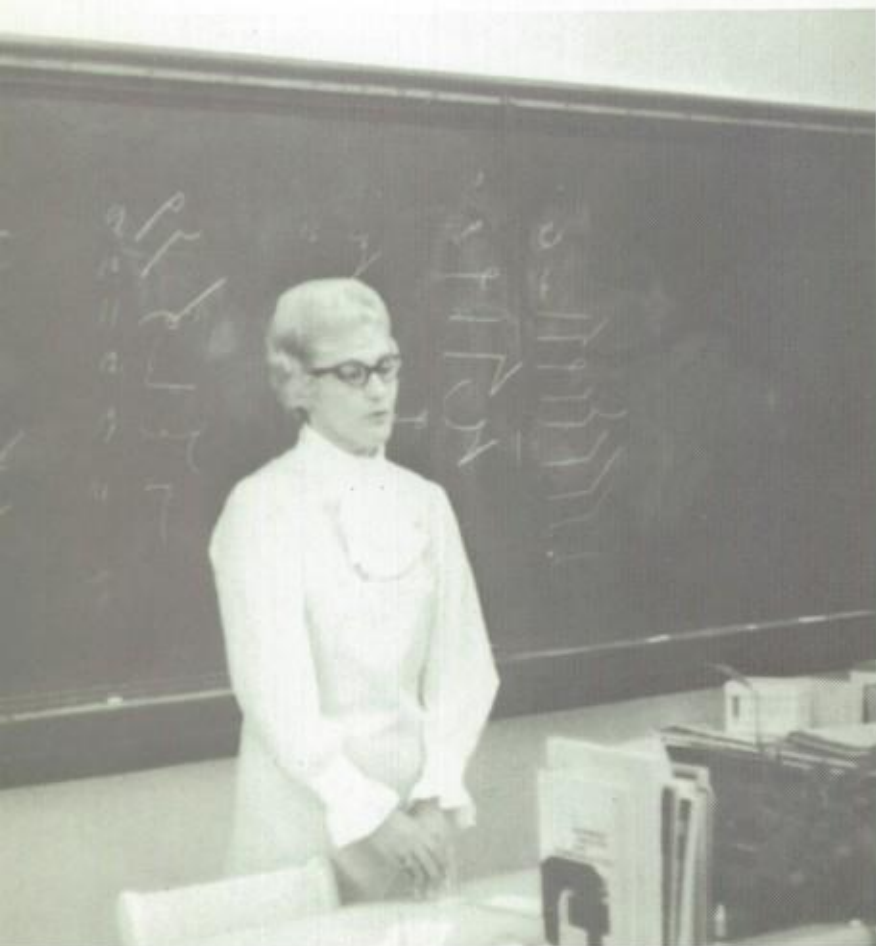

Thomas Riddle, Page Lonnecker, Linda Heatwole and Jane McCall control their excitement over the day's French lesson.

Sally Wyche appears delighted with Mrs. Bobby Wilson's discussion of "Les Grands Boulevards."

Business students prepare for secretarial and accounting jobs

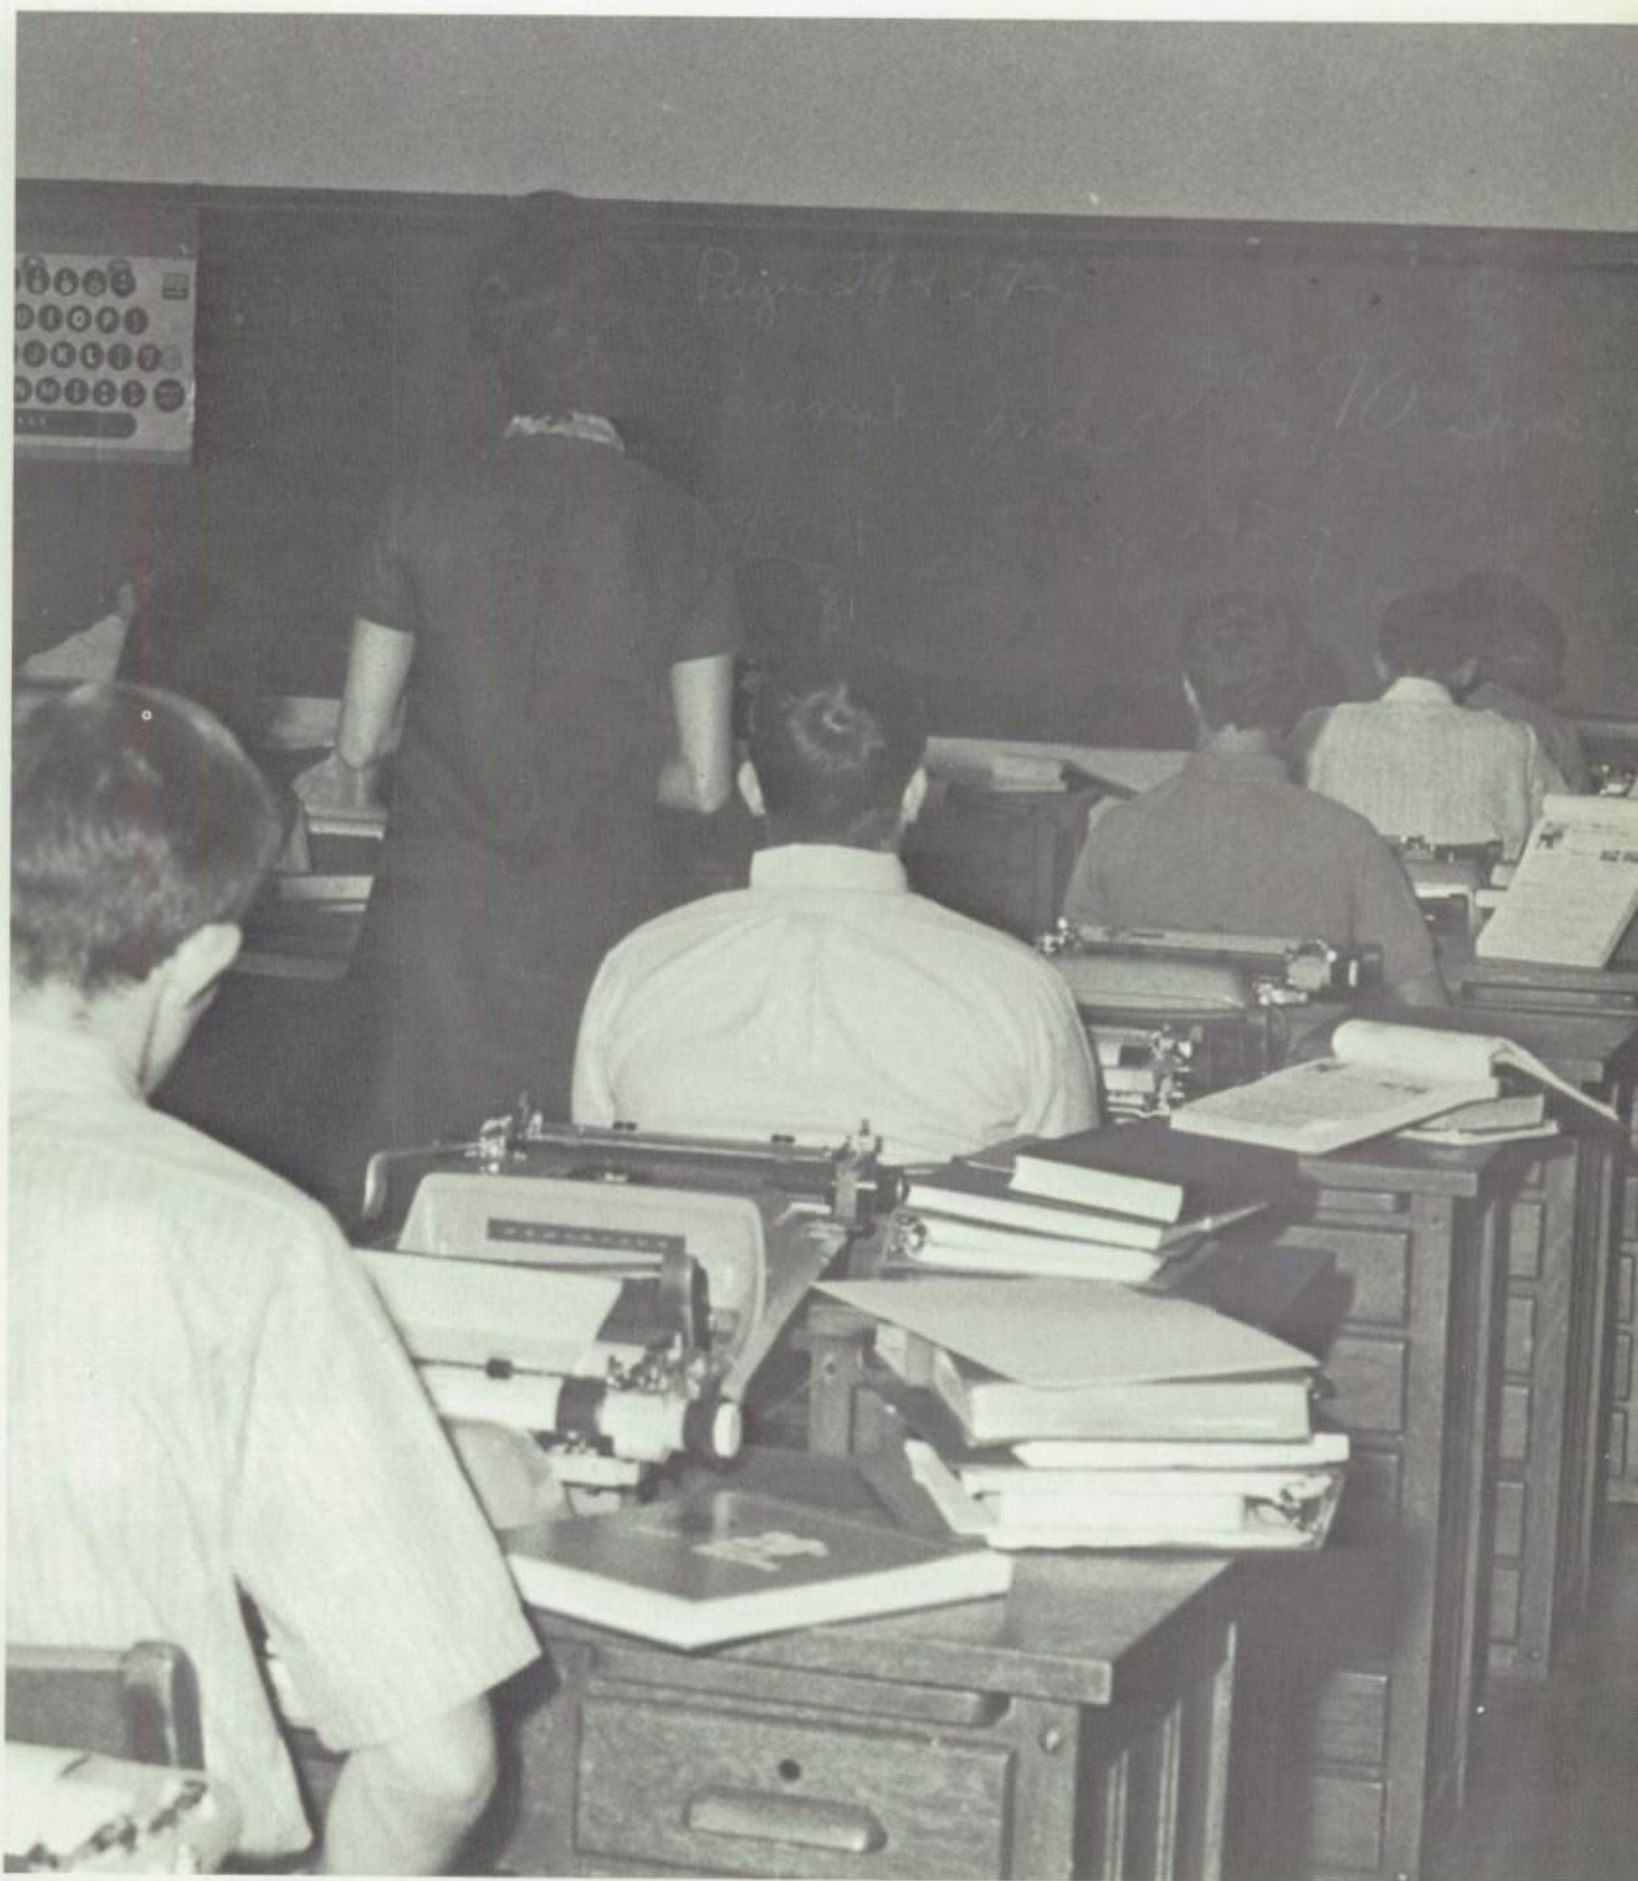

A charm course has been incorporated into the curriculum of shorthand II students to better prepare them for secretarial work. Make-up, speech improvement and current fashions are discussed. Shorthand II students also have the use of a new dictaphone.

Typing courses are taken by students who plan to be secretaries and students who need typing knowledge for various personal reasons. Their class work includes typing outlines, manuscripts, booklets, business letters and an innumerable amount of drills. Bookkeeping students, using a new text book, are concerned with "the flow of money."

Mrs. Ann Armstrong, legal secretary for the U. S. Probation Office, speaks to business education classes.

Bookkeeping students learn accounting techniques from new text books.

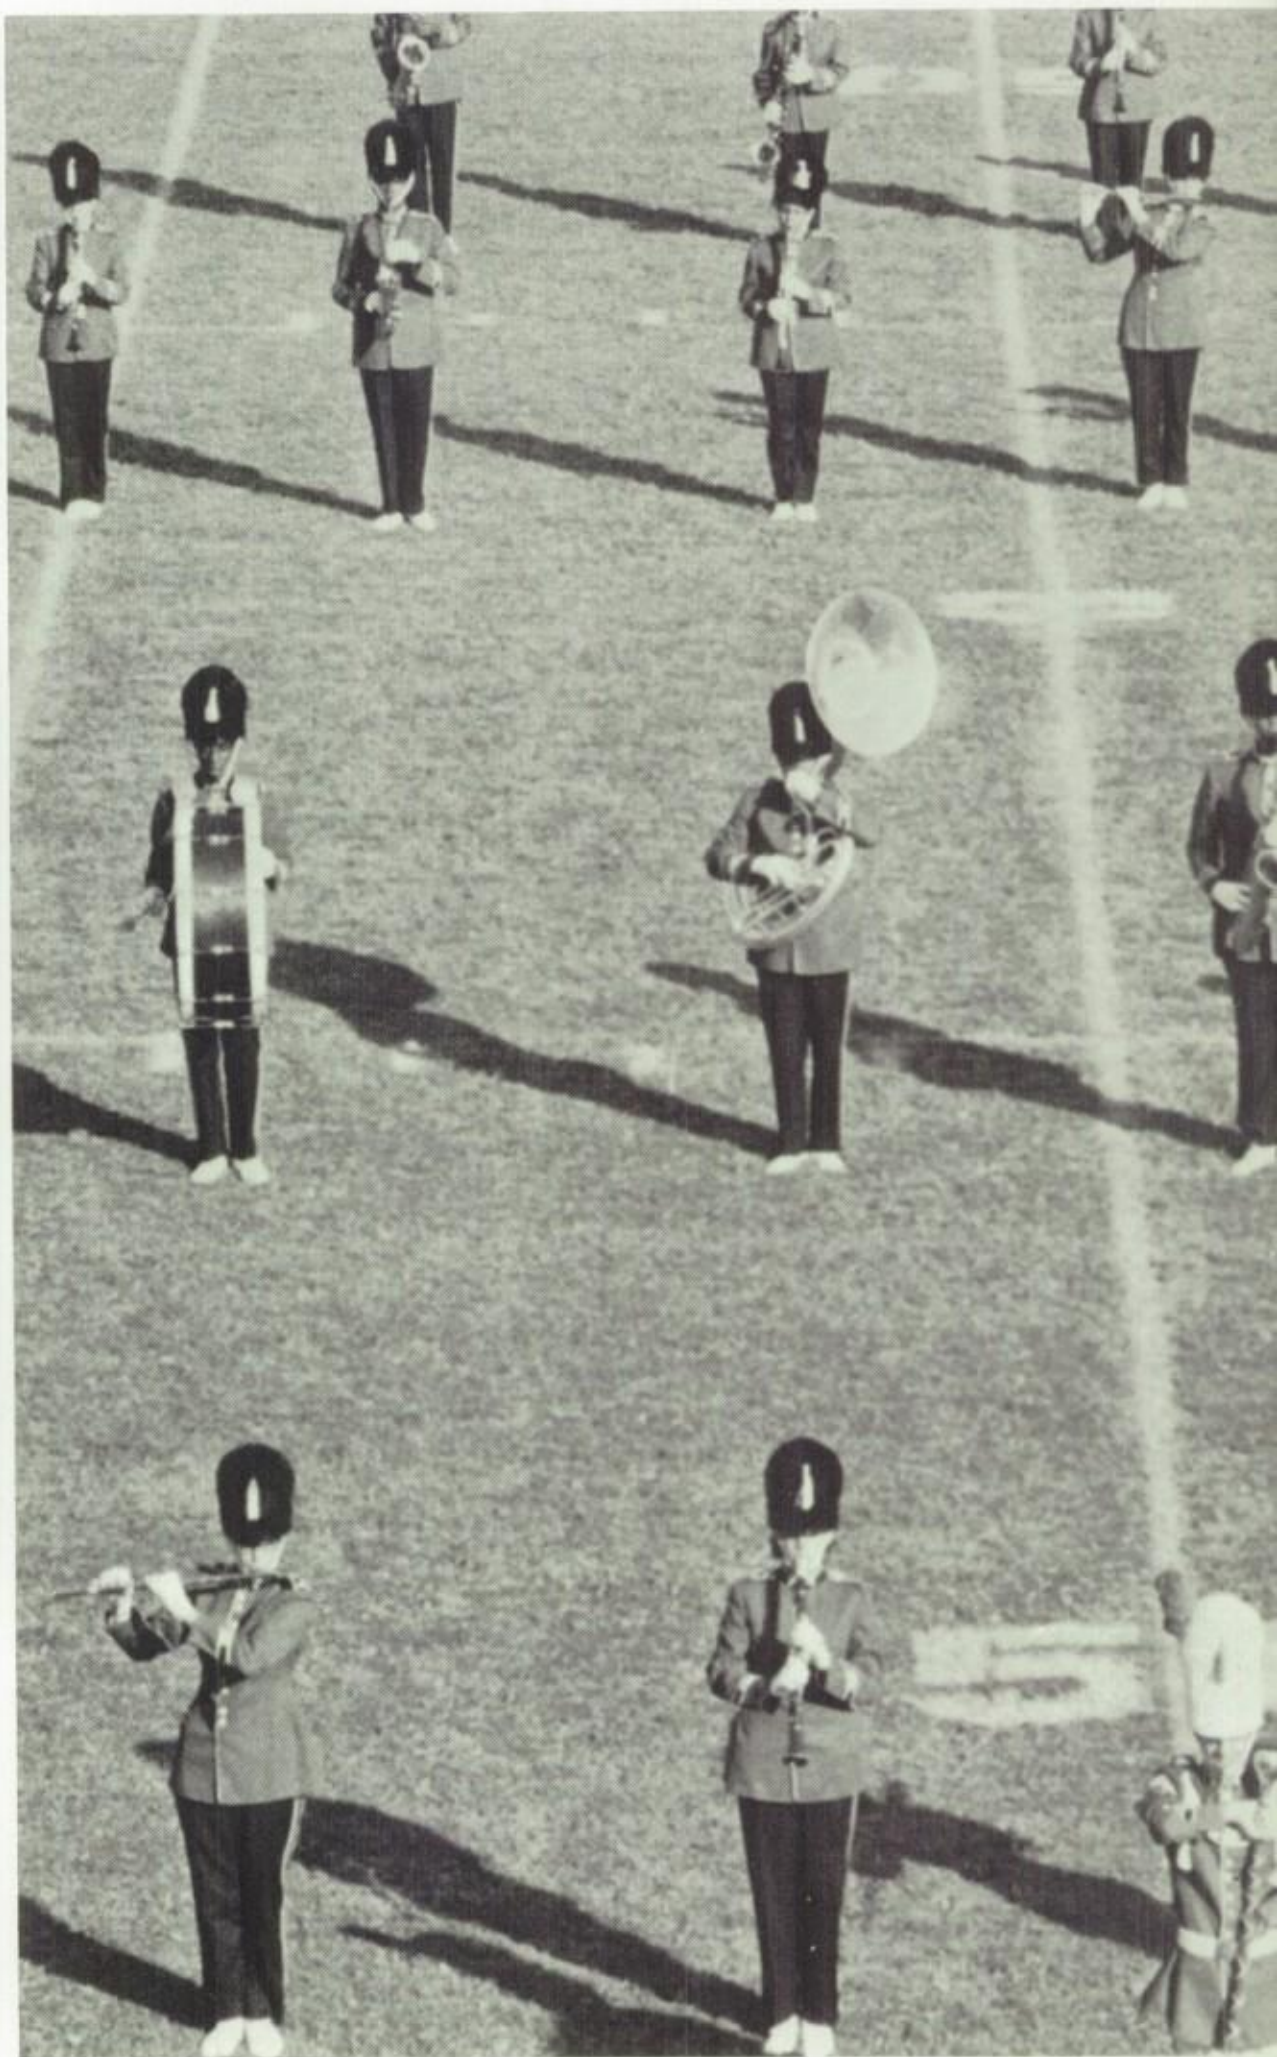

Mrs. Hannah Flowe prepares her class for a timing session.

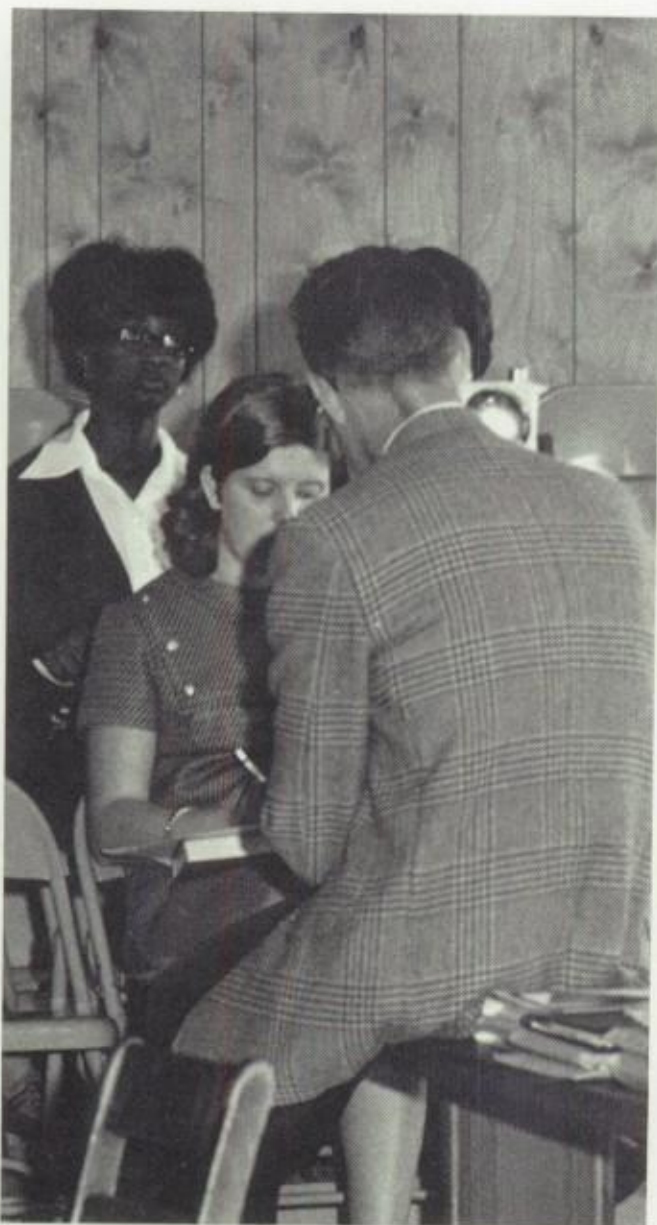

Typing students climb many mountains in efforts to perfect their typing skills.

Mr. David Senn keeps an eye on the game action while directing a fight song.

The GHS band performs during half time ceremonies at the Gaffney game.

New uniforms highlight season

New uniforms highlighted this year's season for the band, which is directed by Mr. David Senn. Participating in halftime festivities at football games, in marching competitions and in Christmas parades were the band's main activities. Members of the band also sold candy as a fund-raising project and ended the year with a banquet.

Mr. James Simpson again directed the girls' and mixed choruses this year. Members of the choruses entertained the student body in holiday assemblies at Christmas and Easter.

Mr. James Simpson gives a few girls extra help in the chorus.

Members of the girl's chorus learn the words to a new song from an overhead projector.

Drama classes participate in Thespians; art students win awards

"The purpose of speech and drama classes is not to make just eloquent speakers or dazzling stars — the goal is to develop poise and confidence within the students so that they may develop their entire personality and become unique individuals." This analysis comes from Mrs. Brenda Snyder, a new member of the fine arts department this year.

Mrs. Lynne Pruitt, art instructor, strives to instill a better understanding and appreciation of art in her students as a means for a well-rounded education. Students whose art work placed in the Greenville County Fair are Frances Carpenter, Barbara Ferguson, Jean Smith, Anne Newton and Lynn Jennings.

Elise Mullins, Gila Martin and Ida Currie entertain their drama class with a song and dance routine.

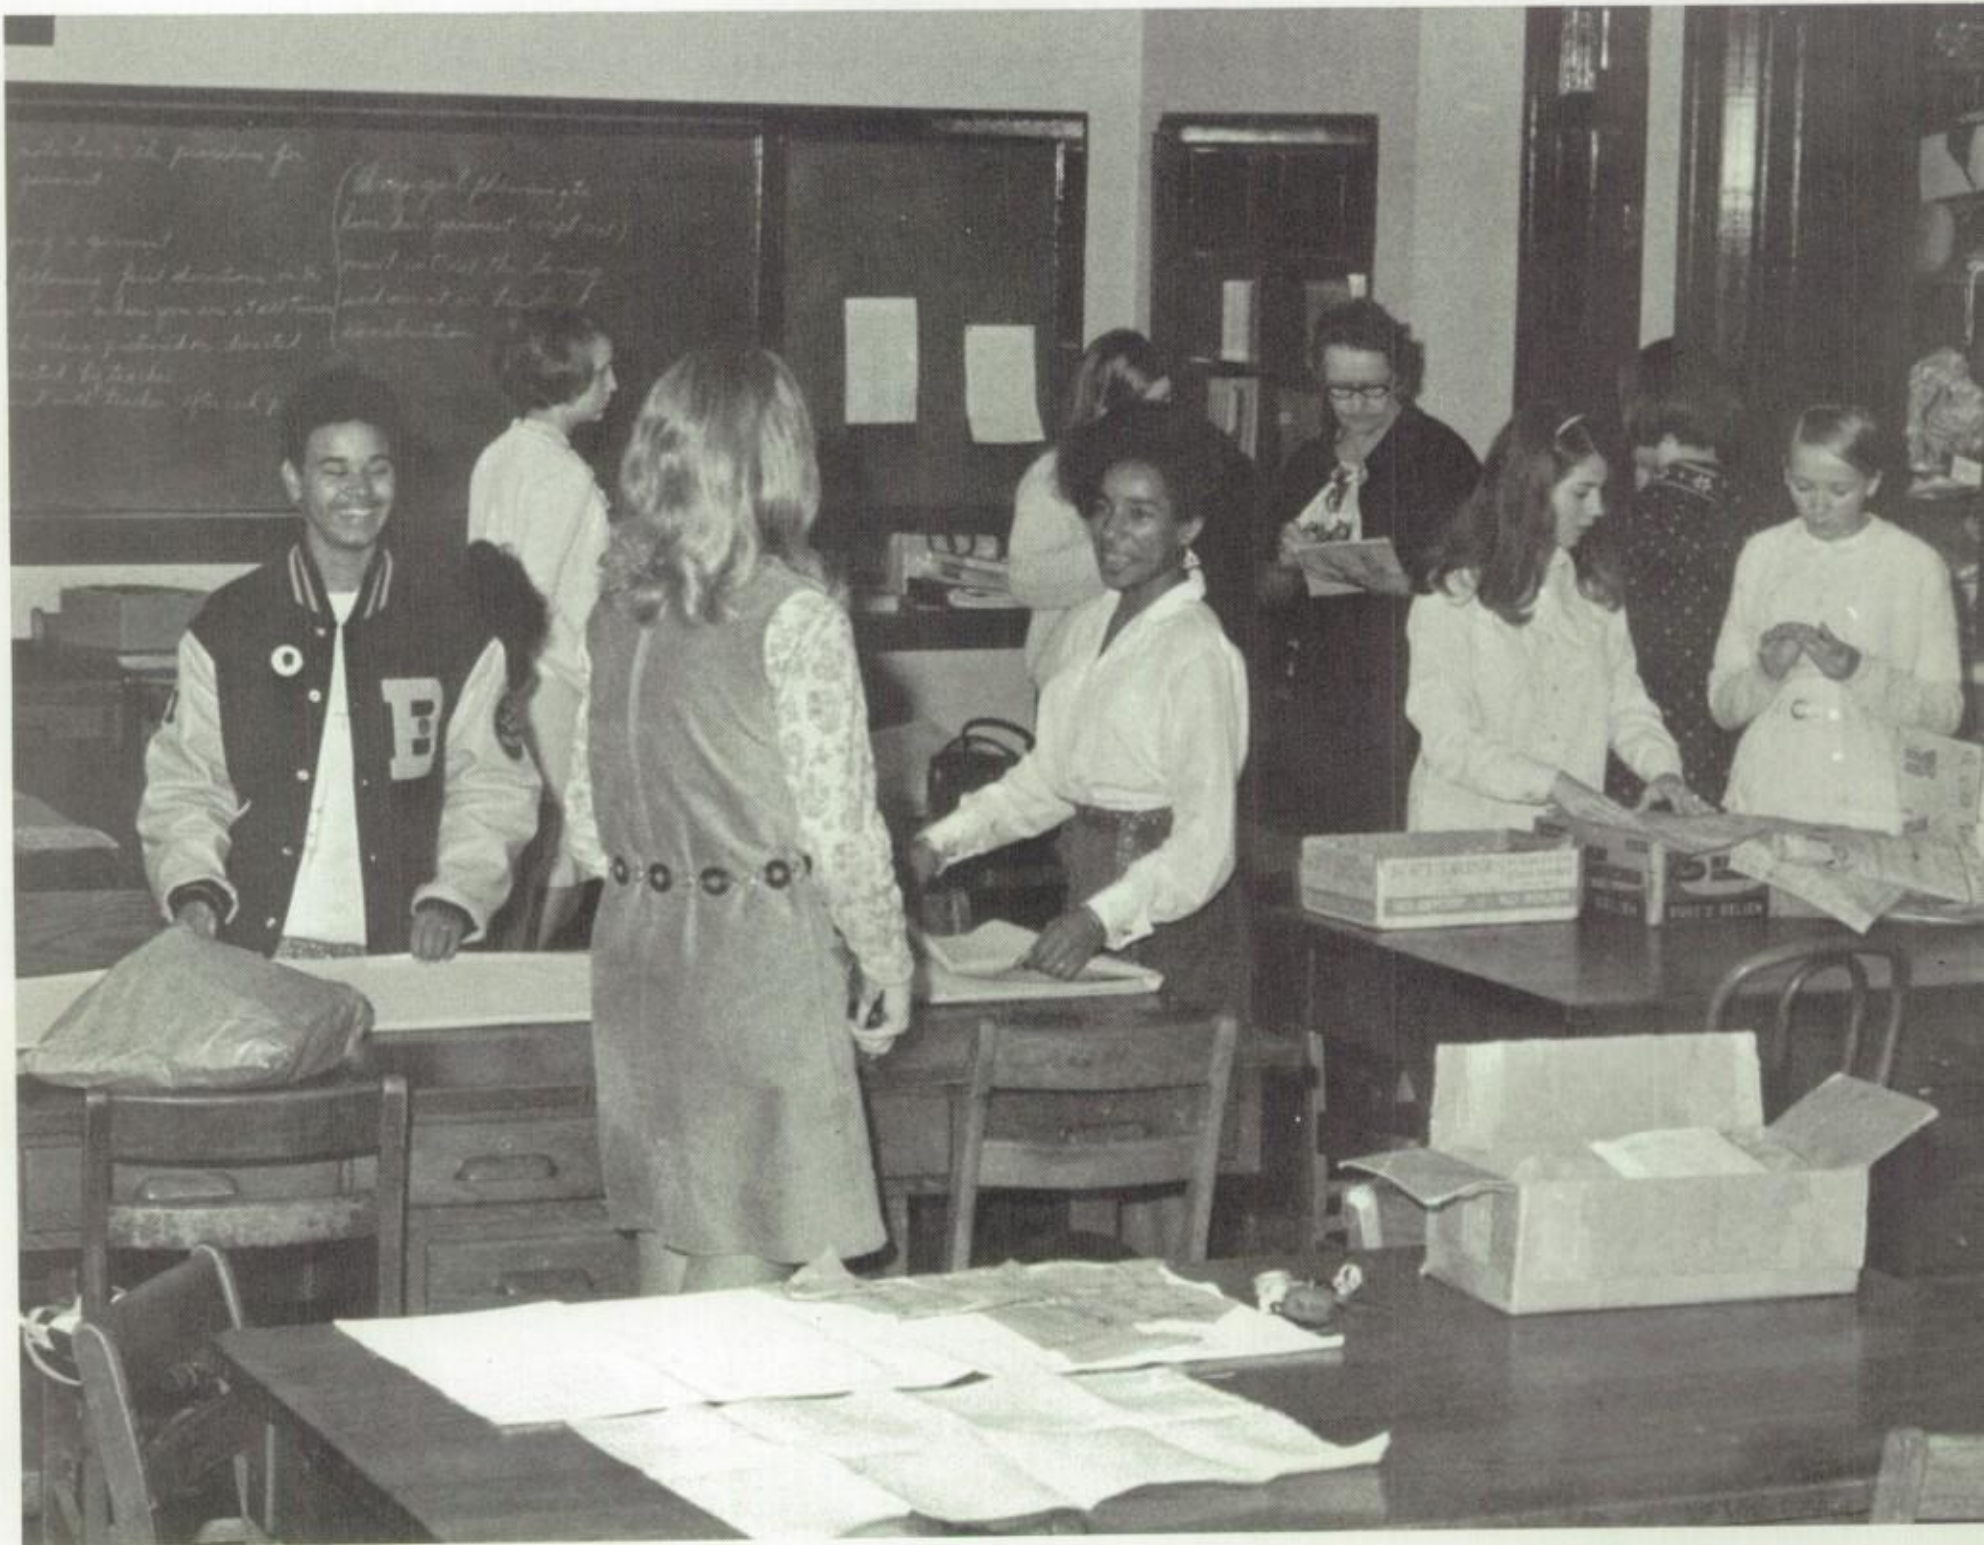

Diane Boyter rehearses the song "I am the Beautiful Reflection of My True Love's Affection" for "The Follies."

Creations by GHS students are on display in the art room.

Mona Lisa and Whistler's Mother overlook Mrs. Lynne Pruitt's art class.

Cutting out patterns is just the first step in making those new dresses

Future housewives learn valuable domestic skills

To successfully manage a home is the goal of girls who take home economics courses taught by Miss Jessie Hunter and Mrs. Ruby Willimon. In the course of a year home ec students learned to make their own clothes, take care of a baby, plan menus and cook. Sewing machines, ironing boards and stoves are at their disposal as these girls work in an informal atmosphere conducive to such work.

Ironing is a necessary unpleasantry.

Jammed sewing machines are common for beginning seamstresses.

Clock-watchers Frances Taylor and Betsey Davenport wait on a stubborn pie.

Gym classes exercise and compete

One hundred thirty-eight girls, under the instruction of Miss Bonnie Ritter, benefit from a goal "to develop the physical, mental, social and emotional aspects of the student through the medium of physical education." Miss Elizabeth Ellison also teaches girls' phys ed which includes calisthenics, volleyball, basketball, tumbling and softball.

Coaches Smith Danielson and James Patterson lead boys' gym classes through such exercises as volleyball, track, basketball and touch football. Physical fitness tests and films of football games are also part of their yearly program.

Two Greenville High girls demonstrate two gymnastic feats which they are taught in the girl's gym class.

Sophomore boys prepare for a volleyball game — as soon as they find a volleyball.

A GHS'er executes a volleyball serve while some of his classmates take a breather.

Laps around the gym make the GHS girls fit.

Mr. Tiedeman explains to David Barton why he uses those measurements in mechanical drawing.

courses offer diversified challenges

Displays set up by agriculture and horticulture classes won second place in the South Carolina Upper State Fair and third place in the American Legion Fair. These same classes worked during the fall to beautify public areas in the city and participated in an education program sponsored by local florists.

Distributive education classes sponsored giftwrapping lessons in November for girls who planned to work during the Christmas holidays. DE students also took part in a field trip to Rich's department store in Atlanta in the spring.

Three girls demonstrate their art ability.

Woodwork students use various machinery as the one above.

woodwork classes use a lot of 'elbow grease'

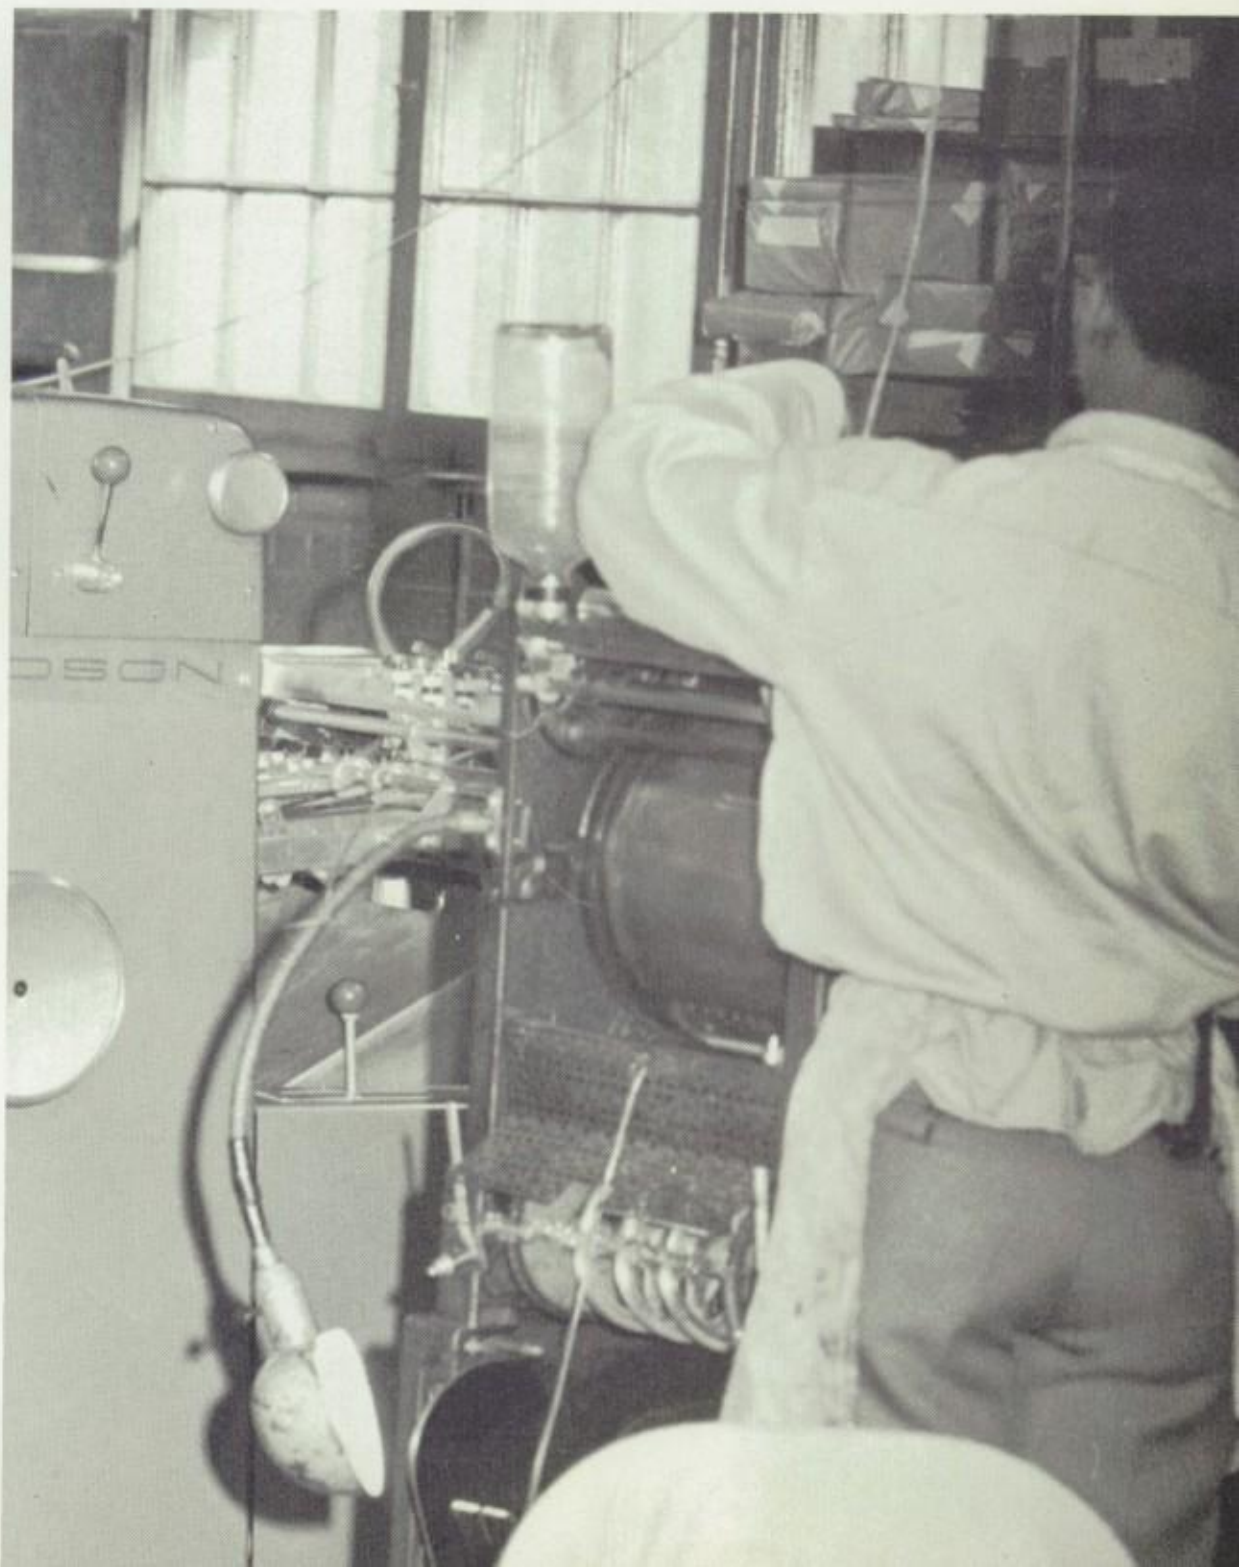

A field trip to Keys Printing Company was taken by boys in the three-hour printing class taught by Mr. Albert Glover. Members of this class learn to operate linotype and other machines while printing most of the school forms used by the Greenville County School system. Through this course students gain an advanced apprentice status in printing. Mr. Glover also teaches a one-hour printing class.

Technical knowledge in woodwork and related areas are taught by Mr. Jack Greene. Members of his classes work on individual projects throughout the year.

Two clubs added to stimulate interest

Every first Tuesday in the month, GHS students found themselves escaping regular classes for one hour to attend club meetings. This year two clubs were added in areas of historical culture and law.

The Black Culture Awareness Club was organized to study black cultural roots and literature. The club members heard various speakers concerned with racial problems.

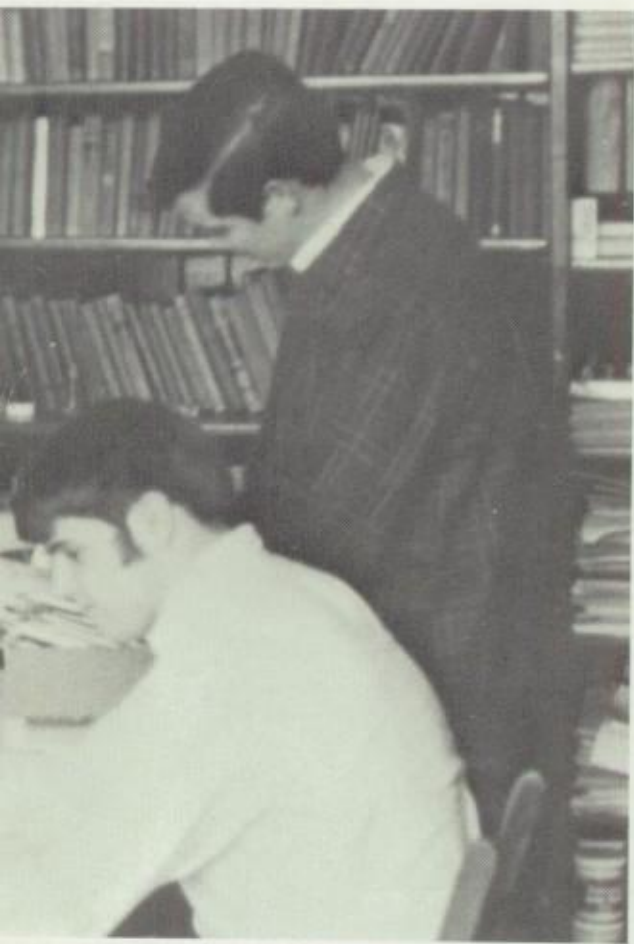

James Parham, a Greenville lawyer, discussed obscenity and pornography under state and federal laws with the newly formed Legal Club. The club is advised by Ken Childs.

Local businessmen and GHS alumni spoke to the Distributive Education Club about marketing, distributing, and other business techniques.

Debbie Pike, DE member, asks Sergeant Dees, speaker for the club, a question about shoplifting.

Chess Club members decide what their next move will be.

Tommy Traxler, Debbie Halter, Joe Earle, and Joe Watson read Legal Club material.

Janet Garrett, Tyree Nedwards, and Sherwood Thompson planned programs for future Black Culture Club meetings.

Space Age Club discusses moon exploration

Science clubs this year experimented with lab work, drug discussions, group projects, and several scientific speeches.

As Tri-Sci-Jets heard GHS student Sam Cowan discuss his lab work at Greenville General Hospital, Science Research Club members conducted lab experiments.

Space Age Club members worked toward greater understanding of today's space program and the flights to the moon through various speakers.

Naoko Yagyu, foreign student, compared the soroban, the Japanese abacus, to an American abacus during a Math Club meeting.

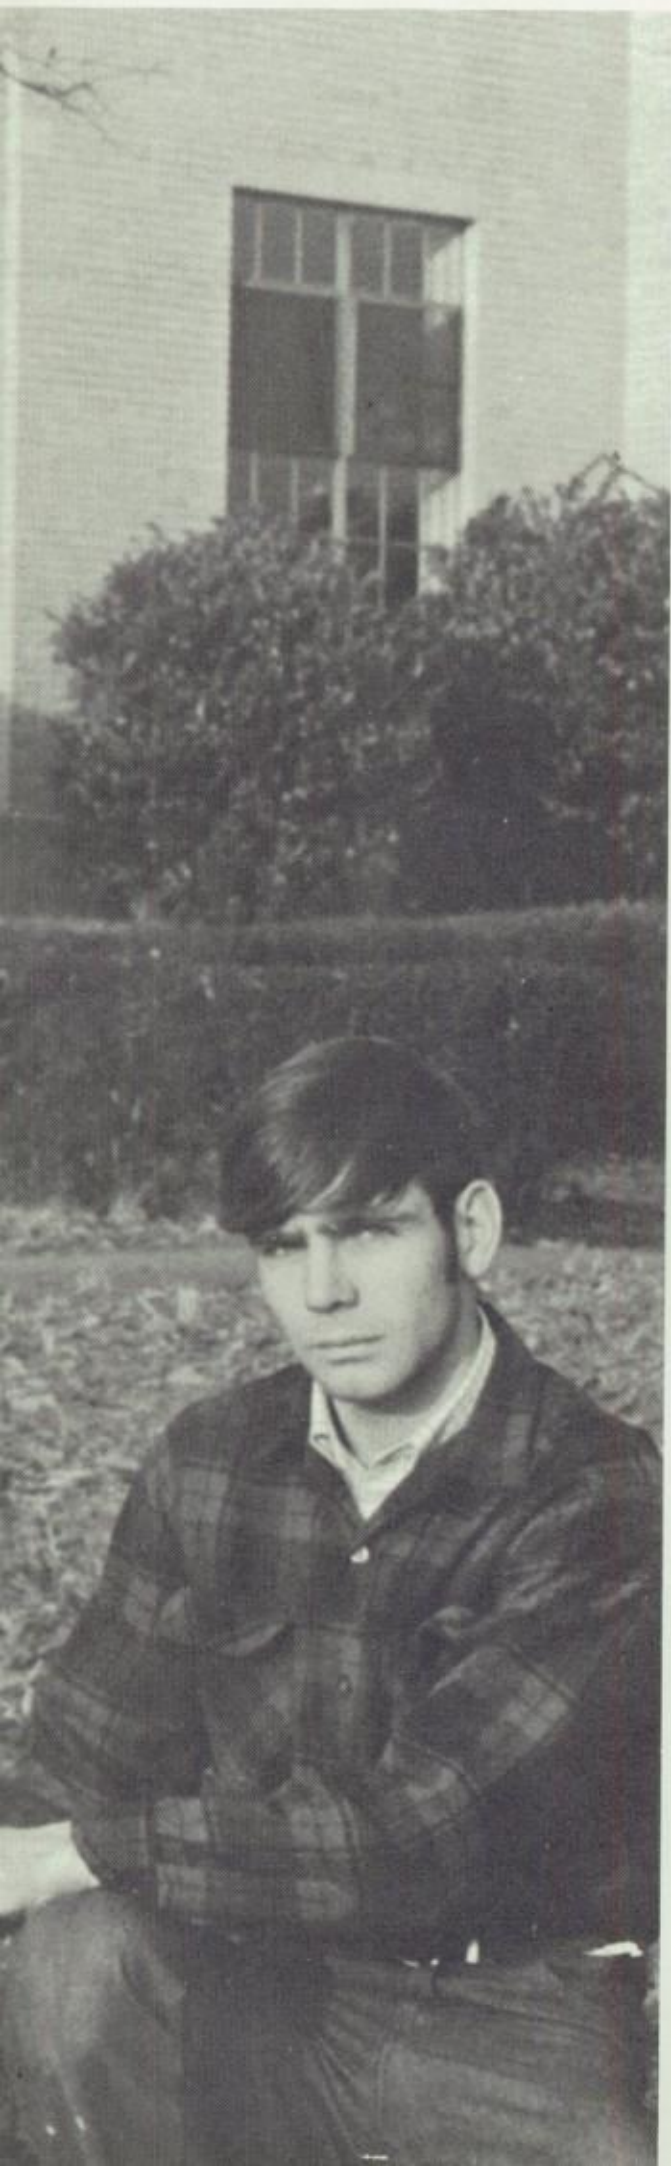

Jackson Greene, Gun Club advisor, introduced club members to the make of a gun and its uses.

Bob Compton and Marsha Brown, Math Club members, listen attentively to Naoko Yagyu's explanation of the Japanese abacus.

Rex Horton and Donald McDade listen to Mr. Greene, Gun Club advisor.

Tri-Sci-Jets member Sally McNair explains one part of the cell division to the club.

A guest speaker at a Space Age Club meeting, motions with his hand to demonstrate the operation of a rocket stage.

Pam Arrowood and Jan Christie, Science Research Club members, weigh objects during a lab session.

Health Club works in local health rally

Preparing students for careers in health and library service is the aim of the Health Careers and Library Service Clubs.

While visiting Greenville General Hospital and participating in a Greenville health rally, the Health Careers Club became acquainted with community health problems.

Miss Marge Stanley of WFBC spoke to Library Service Club members who later traveled to the Clemson University library.

Advanced Knicks and Beginners Knitting Club members worked on individual projects and practiced embroidery, needlepoint, and crocheting. Club members, instructed by Mrs. Moore, Miss Whitehurst, Mrs. Graves, and Mrs. Nicholson, "do anything that can be done with a needle."

Dr. Taylor, local psychiatrist, describes his experiences in Vietnam to the Health Careers Club as Nurse Martin looks on.

Beginning knitter Sally Wyche makes one more stitch in her incomplete sweater.

Leslie Rasberry demonstrates her knitting skills to Knicks members, Nancy Harbin and Susan Perryman.

Kathy Waddell, Rochelle Kilgore, Paula Sarkis, and Nell Stivender straighten books before a Library Service Club meeting.

Lou Anne McMullan hesitates before moving as opponent Harriet Irwin looks on.

Art Club members talk and wait before the program begins.

Culture entertains fine arts groups

Through opera, art, chess, ballet, photography, and improved literature, five clubs at GHS attempted to culturalize the students.

Keith Riddle, voice major, presented to Arts and Humanities members an operatic program. Sigrid Skogstad, music major, accompanied him on the piano.

Camera Club members studied progressive phases of photography and viewed recent photographs. Club advisor is R. S. Tiedeman.

The Art Club reviewed past masterpieces in an attempt to acquaint members with well-known artists and their techniques.

Preparing a team for matches with other schools proved to be the Chess Club's main objective for the year.

Members of the Creative Writing Club reviewed modern books such as "Through the Vanishing Point."

Susan Betts and a student teacher listen as Janice Yates reviews a recently read book for Creative Writing Club.

Fine Arts members show different reactions as operatic singer Keith Riddle performs.

Mason Thomas points out a setting for a good picture while Martin Rogers and another camera club member focus on the scene.

Future Farmers travel to National Convention

From cake decorating to patriotism to ham radios, various clubs presented programs with wide ranges of subjects.

Future Homemakers of America droolingly watched as Miss Hortense Parkins demonstrated the proper methods of decorating a cake.

"Patriotism" was the topic of a speech given by Mrs. Jessica Morris, Greenville News feature columnist, to the Future Business Leaders of America.

The Future Farmers of America sent two representatives, Frank Dowling and Doug Ross, to the National FFA Convention.

The Future Teachers of America studied advanced methods of teaching and their effects on learning.

Miss Hortense Parkins shows the FHA club how to decorate a cake.

A guest speaker prepares to answer another Future Farmer's question.

Suzanne Heape tells another funny experience to FTA members, Carline Morgan and Mary Green.

Phillip Higgins tunes in on a frequency during a meeting of the Ham Radio club.

Jessica Morris, guest speaker, speaks to the FBLA club.

Language clubs hear trip highlights

Highlights of foreign trips and competition in statewide contests provided entertainment for the five clubs at GHS which study foreign relationships.

Hot Tamales, first year Spanish students, listened as GHS Chilean student Michael Gemmel described his native country's habits and customs.

Second year Spanish students attend the Buenos Amigos Club. Club members watched slides made on a recent trip by Mrs. Reed.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student government acts under new constitution

Homeroom presidents, heads of all standing committees and student body officers are all part of student government at Greenville Senior High.

President of the student body, Bob Farnsworth, presided at all meetings. The council discussed with Mr. Linn the decision that no one person could decide alone. That is, that the playing of Dixie would not be restricted at school functions but that the waving of Confederate flags would be discouraged since it was not part of the usual practice of the school.

Student Council chose "Princess Jane McCall" as representative from Greenville High School in the annual Christmas parade.

Student Council also sponsored a school project, the selling of light bulbs to help the band pay for their new uniforms.

Jane McCall, secretary of student council and Linda Rabb, vice-president, look over GHS grounds.

Rick Timmons voices an opinion at a cabinet meeting.

Committees strive for improvement

Various GHS students were chosen by Bob Farnsworth and approved by Miss Boyd to head the standing committees. These committees play an important part in the welfare of the school. This year, all the trash cans on the Greenville High grounds were painted red and white and placed by the property committee around the school. Their aim was for more students to use the trash cans and not litter as much as in past years.

Parking tickets were placed on cars that were parked without permission in the senior parking lot. When this happened the first time, a warning was given. The second time all parking privileges were taken away from the student. Frequent rounds of inspection was the duty of the traffic safety committee.

A spirit contest was sponsored by the athletic committee. An accumulation of points decided the winner which turned out to be the seniors.

Friday pep rallies reflect GHS spirit

This year something new was added to the enthusiasm of GHS students; a spirit contest. Sponsored by the Pep Club Council, the seniors had the edge over the sophomores and juniors all year. Points were given for such things as attending games, coming to the pep rallies and voting in elections. The seniors seemed to be ahead in all categories.

Miss Graves' room was named the most spirited homeroom and was presented a plaque for having the most banners displayed in connection with the Greenville-Wade Hampton football game.

The "best banner" award went to Mr. Harrell's homeroom for its interpretation of the Wade Hampton players. Frances Carpenter, president of the Pep Club, Sally Waldrep, head cheerleader, and Lucius Cline, Red Raider, served as the judges in these contests.

The highlight of the football season was celebrated by Raiderama. The annual crowning of Miss Raiderama was performed at half-time during the Greenville-Riverside football game. Miss Raiderama was Frances Carpenter, president of the Pep Club; first runner-up, Susan Ashmore; and second runner-up, Lynda Moore.

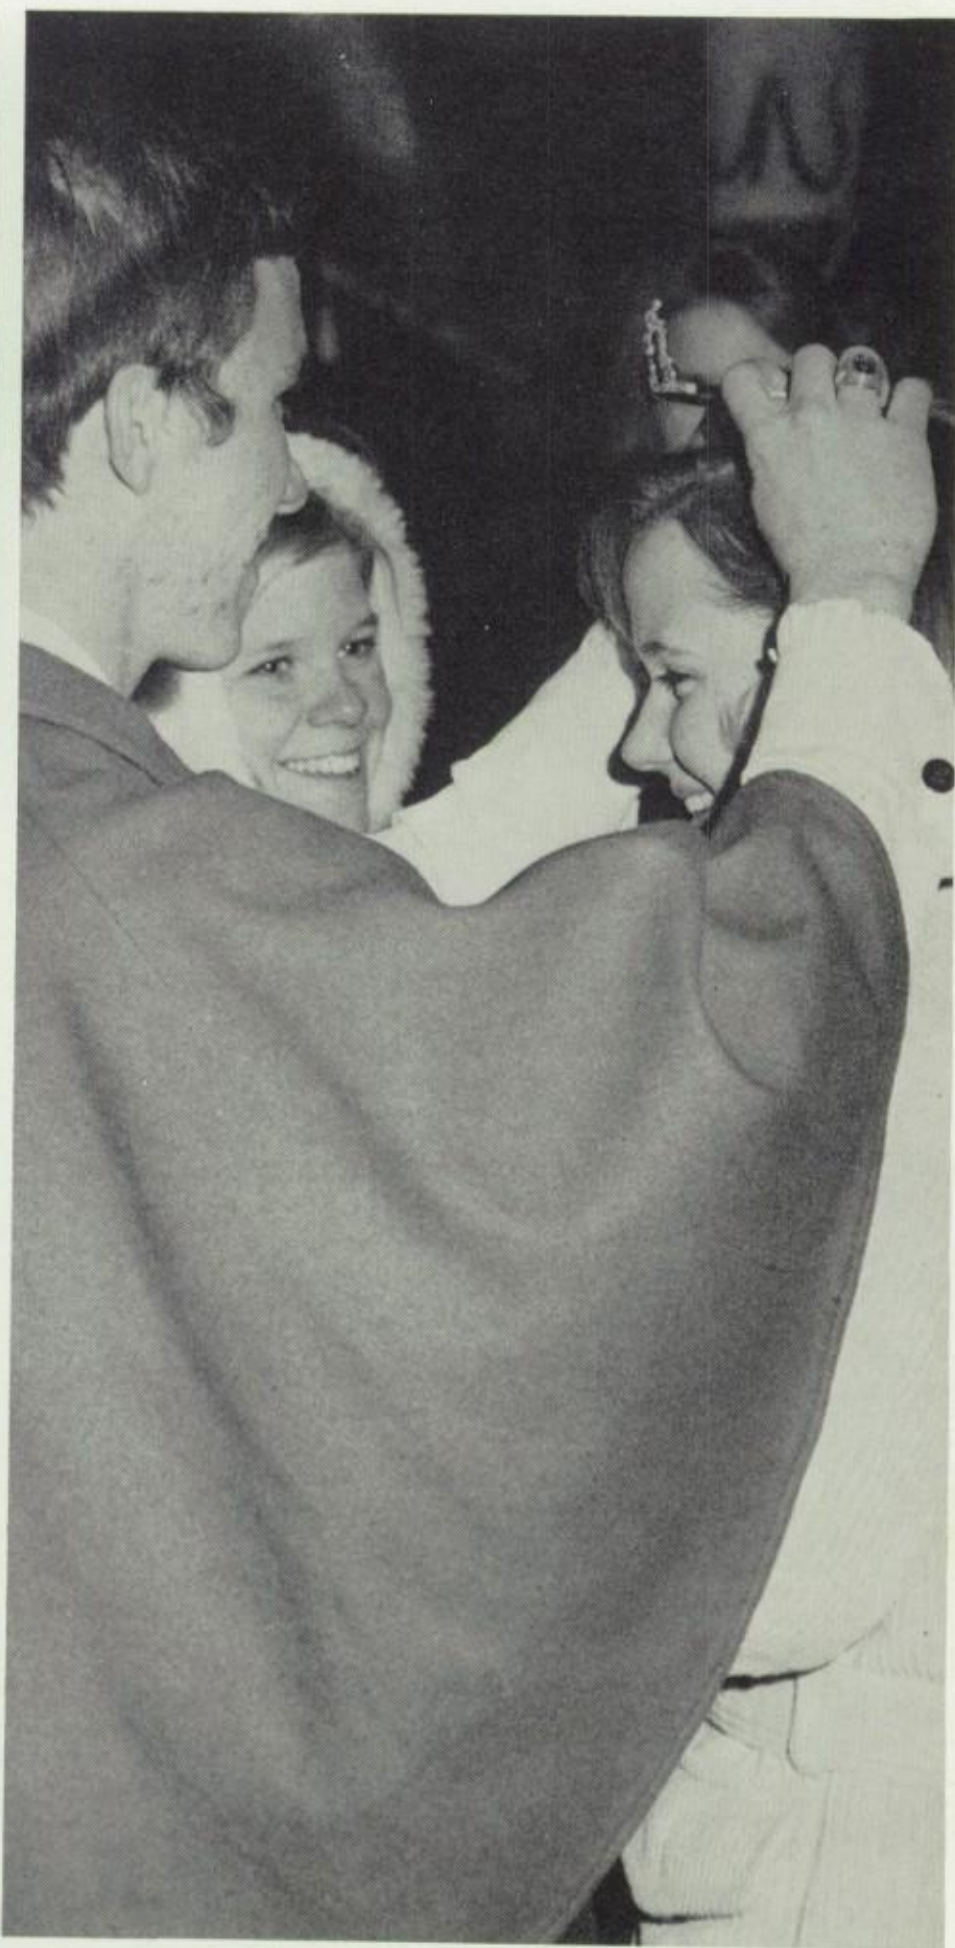

Before the game the senior football players' parents and the senior band members were introduced.

After the game, the Pep Club sponsored a Raiderama dance in the school cafeteria. The Superiors provided the music from 10 p.m. to midnight.

Assemblies encourage holiday spirit

The annual GHS beauty pageant was held in October with the theme, The Signs of the Zodiac. Senior, Page Lonnecker, was mistress of ceremonies.

The Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies presented students with choral programs under the direction of Mr. James Simpson. Contributions of can goods from each homeroom made up attractive food boxes for needy families.

At the Thanksgiving assembly Linda Rabb presented the food boxes to a representative from the Salvation Army.

The band accompanied the mixed chorus during the Christmas assembly. A choral reading was given by junior, John Hood.

Band member, Charles Kilgore, performs at the Christmas Assembly.

Student increase due to integration

Under the Health, Education and Welfare ruling, Greenville county schools were ordered to be totally intergrated by Feb. 16, 1970. Greenville Senior High was allowed to keep all present students and 100 more students were transferred to GHS.

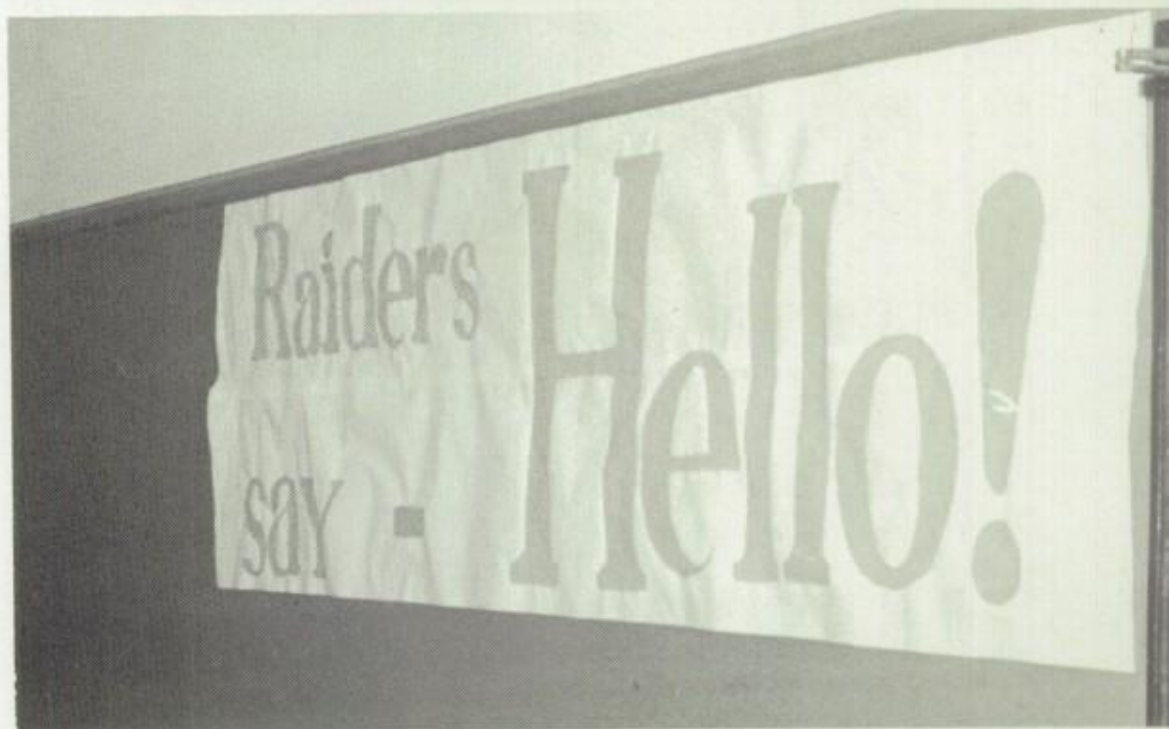

This plan made the overall ratio approximately 80 per cent white and 20 per cent black. The school plan that was filed provides that there be no all black or predominately black schools in the system.

Greenville Senior High received 10 new teachers under the ruling.

NHS sponsors College Night

Held at the beginning of the school year, Open House gave GHS students' parents a chance to get acquainted with teachers. The social committee, headed by Becky Price, was seated at entrances and gave name tags to parents. The event was sponsored by the Greenville Senior High School P.T.A.

The annual College Night was Dec. 1. Representatives from many different schools came to Greenville High to tell about their respective colleges. Questions were answered and information on colleges distributed. All classrooms, the cafeteria and the auditorium were used for the different college representatives. College bound students found this night beneficial and informative.

Posters were displayed around the school by the publicity committee announcing College Night.

Billy Bryan meets opposition from Parker as Don Linn and Jimmy Edge attempt to clear the way.

Red Raiders complete season with 5-6 record

With the absence of Coach Moore for most of the season, the Greenville Red Raiders finished the season with a 5-6 record.

The defense proved to be the strong point of the Greenville High football team this year. The opposition found it too tough to move the ball on the ground and went to the air in almost every game. Rick Timmons led the defensive linemen and linebackers in the majority of gangtackles. David Brady, Steve Spires, Roger Newell, Austin McMurria, and Bruce Owen showed that they could play hard-nose football. Edwin Haskell, Jimmy Edge, Robert Anders, Billy Bryan and Mark Taylor also proved to be valuable assets to the Raider defense. The major reason for the Raiders' six defeats was accounted to a few exceptional plays in which the opposition caught the defense off guard.

The Raiders took their five victories from Dorman, Rock Hill, Carolina, Wade Hampton, and Riverside.

Mark Taylor enters a well cleared path on a kickoff.

The Raider bench watches as their teammates battle against Gaffney in an afternoon game.

Bill McCalla sidesteps a downed Wade Hampton General.

Offense concentrates on ground yardage

The offensive eleven displayed much talent at times but just couldn't seem to really get rolling. The backfield men were so equally matched in strength that the coaches had a hard time deciding who to start. Max Horton, Bill McCalla, Jimmy Edge, Roger Dukes, Billy Bryan, Steve Kelley, and Tommy Phillips alternated in most games for the three backfield positions. Hugh Brigham did the quarterbacking until the last game when Mike Gantt took over the job.

A week before the opening game with Rock Hill all the tensions and pressures that had built up on Coach Moore during the summer had materialized in the form of a severe bleeding ulcer and the 1969 Red Raiders found themselves with their head coach in the hospital.

Raiders win over hapless Generals

The true spirit of the Red Raiders was shown in the second half of the opening game with Rock Hill. The Red Eleven were behind at the half but came out of the dressing room ready to win and handed Rock Hill a 16-14 defeat.

In the season's second game with Carolina the Raiders scored early in the second quarter to take an unimpressive 7-0 victory over the Trojans.

On a cold rainy night, the Raiders suffered a 14-0 defeat from Spartanburg. The next two games were as dreary as the weather that night. Anderson took a 10-0 win and the Gaffney score was 20-7. In the Dorman game the offense marched over the Cavaliers and the defense did a fine job to make the score 20-7. Parker displayed more talent and desire than they have in ten years as they beat the Raiders 27-10. At the first game that Coach Moore attended this year, the Greenville High Red Raiders walked over Wade Hampton by a score of 21-6. More spirit was displayed by the Raiders at this game than at any other this year. It was truly the big game of 1969.

Prospects for 1970 team play on varsity squad

Although the Raider team this year was not quite as successful this year as compared to teams in the past, underclassmen gained much experience. Toward the end of the season the Raiders started with a team consisting mostly of underclassmen. Even those who did not see a lot of action played some. Coming back next year on the interior are David Brady, Don Linn, Rodney Cudd, Roger Newell, Austin McMurria, Bruce Owen, Bill Snelson, and Gerald Knight. David Brady started this year on defense and offense.

The backfield next year will have several veterans from this year's team. Returning are Mark Taylor, Max Horton, Roger Dukes, and Mike Gantt. According to the coaches Greenville High is to have a great and promising team. The varsity team will also receive players coming up from the Baby Reds.

Jayvees end year with 2-5-1 record

The Baby Reds had a good group of spirited, hard working boys on this year's team. Although their record wasn't outstanding the boys gained experience necessary to play on the varsity team next year. Only a few costly mistakes kept the JV's from having a winning season. Jerry Knight, coach for the team remarked, "Our main fault this year was allowing a lot of cheap touchdowns"

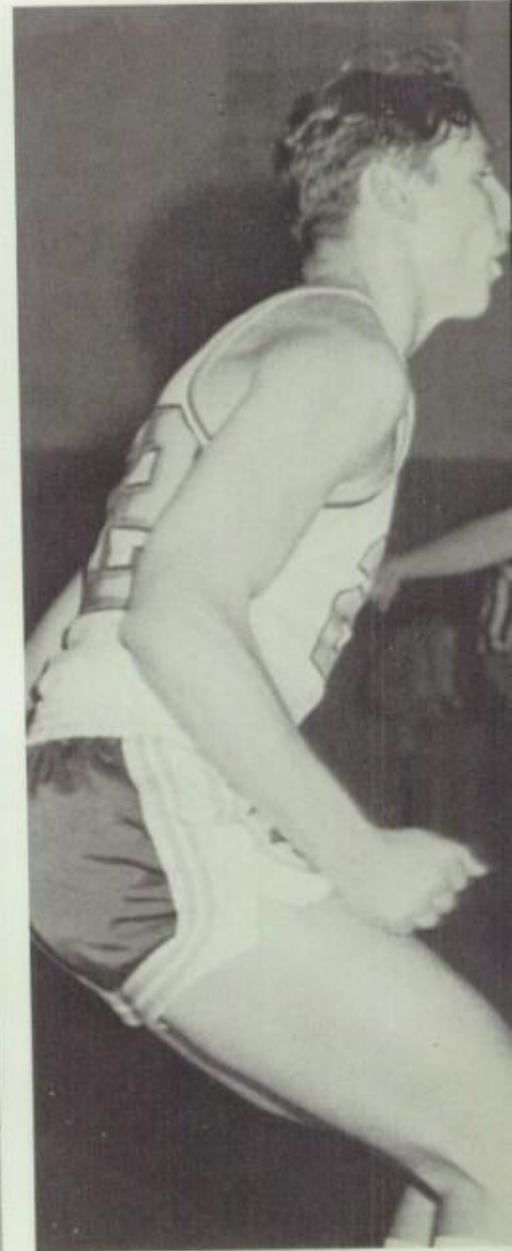

The JV team is made up mostly of ninth and tenth graders who will probably continue football for the varsity team.

Raiders end year with losing record

The Greenville High basketball team ended this year's season with the first losing record that the Raiders have experienced in many years. Illnesses and suspensions of several players kept the Raiders from having a better record than 9-10. The Raiders started the season with an impressive show of strength as they advanced to the finals in the Christmas Invitational, only to be beaten by J. L. Mann 58-52.

Marino Valentine, averaging in double figures, was the high scorer in most games. Mark Taylor and David Pruitt were also steady scorers. Thomas Sligh managed to get more than his share of rebounds from taller opponents.

The Baby Reds finished second in the county tournament playing better than they did all year. This year's bench was strong and many boys received helpful experience.

Led by Joby Moon, Gary Hopf, Larry Carson and Greg Sligh, the Greenville High track team placed in several events in about all meets. Coached by James Patterson, the team practiced every afternoon after school.

On April 9, the track team met with Greenwood. Although they lost the meet, Joby Moon captured first place in the high hurdles, Greg Sligh placing in the discus and Edwin Haskell winning the pole vault.

The 1970 Red Raider tennis team got off to a bad start losing to J. L. Mann. It seemed that the team was inexperienced except for the sure winner, Richard Hardaway. They lost twice to A. C. Flora but showed hope when they beat Belton and Spartanburg. Although the netmen couldn't compare to last year's champions in Southern High School Tournament, they finished fourth thanks to Richard Hardaway. He won the tournament number one singles division and he and Bill McCalla reached the semifinals in doubles. Two newcomers, Tom Suitt and Johnny Anderson, joined the team this year as number six and number three players to try to replace Raz Reid, last year's star.

This year the Raiders weren't favored in the State 4-A tournament, but Coach Wilton McKinney said there was a good chance for victory if the team worked hard.

The team started the season by participating in the Furman Invitational Tournament. Twenty area high schools participated in the meet. Greenville placed second. The linkmen beat J. L. Mann in the tournament but lost to Greenwood, Spartanburg and A. C. Flora.

Veteran Chuck Perry occupied the number one spot all season.

This year there are four seniors on the team who will be graduating. Two juniors and two sophomores will return in 1971.

Graduation!

One Chapter ends . . . another begins.
And it's not too early — nor too late—to look into your future and accept one of the exciting and challenging opportunities which exist for you in the Greenville area for a career in the health field.

There is an increasing need for specialists, and to learn about the requirements and qualifications, all you need to do is to write for brochures and applications.

Well, we have only known each other for about 5 months but I could say that you are one of the greatest, funniest, coolest guys I have ever met. From reading your friends ~~opinion~~ opinions they feel the same way to. I just wish I could find the words to express how much your friendship means to me. Do you remember that night you stayed up here and we talked about why we are put on this earth? I finally realized what your purpose is. God put you on this earth to make people happy and to try to help them solve their problems. So me, you have fulfilled this in the highest way. I ~~wish~~ wish that more people could be like you. Just like I said, words can't express someone like you. When people say "one man is a lonely island" they aren't talking about you. To me, you're the person who tries to bring these lonely people together to live in world of happiness. If you keep working on this ~~purpose~~ purpose the world will be what ~~the world will be~~ we want it to be. Please, keep trying and I'll stand right beside you. Just remember, "you can tackle anything". Best of luck in college and I'll see you at the beach.

have a very successful one.*

Enthusiasm, wit merit dedication to Mrs. Greene

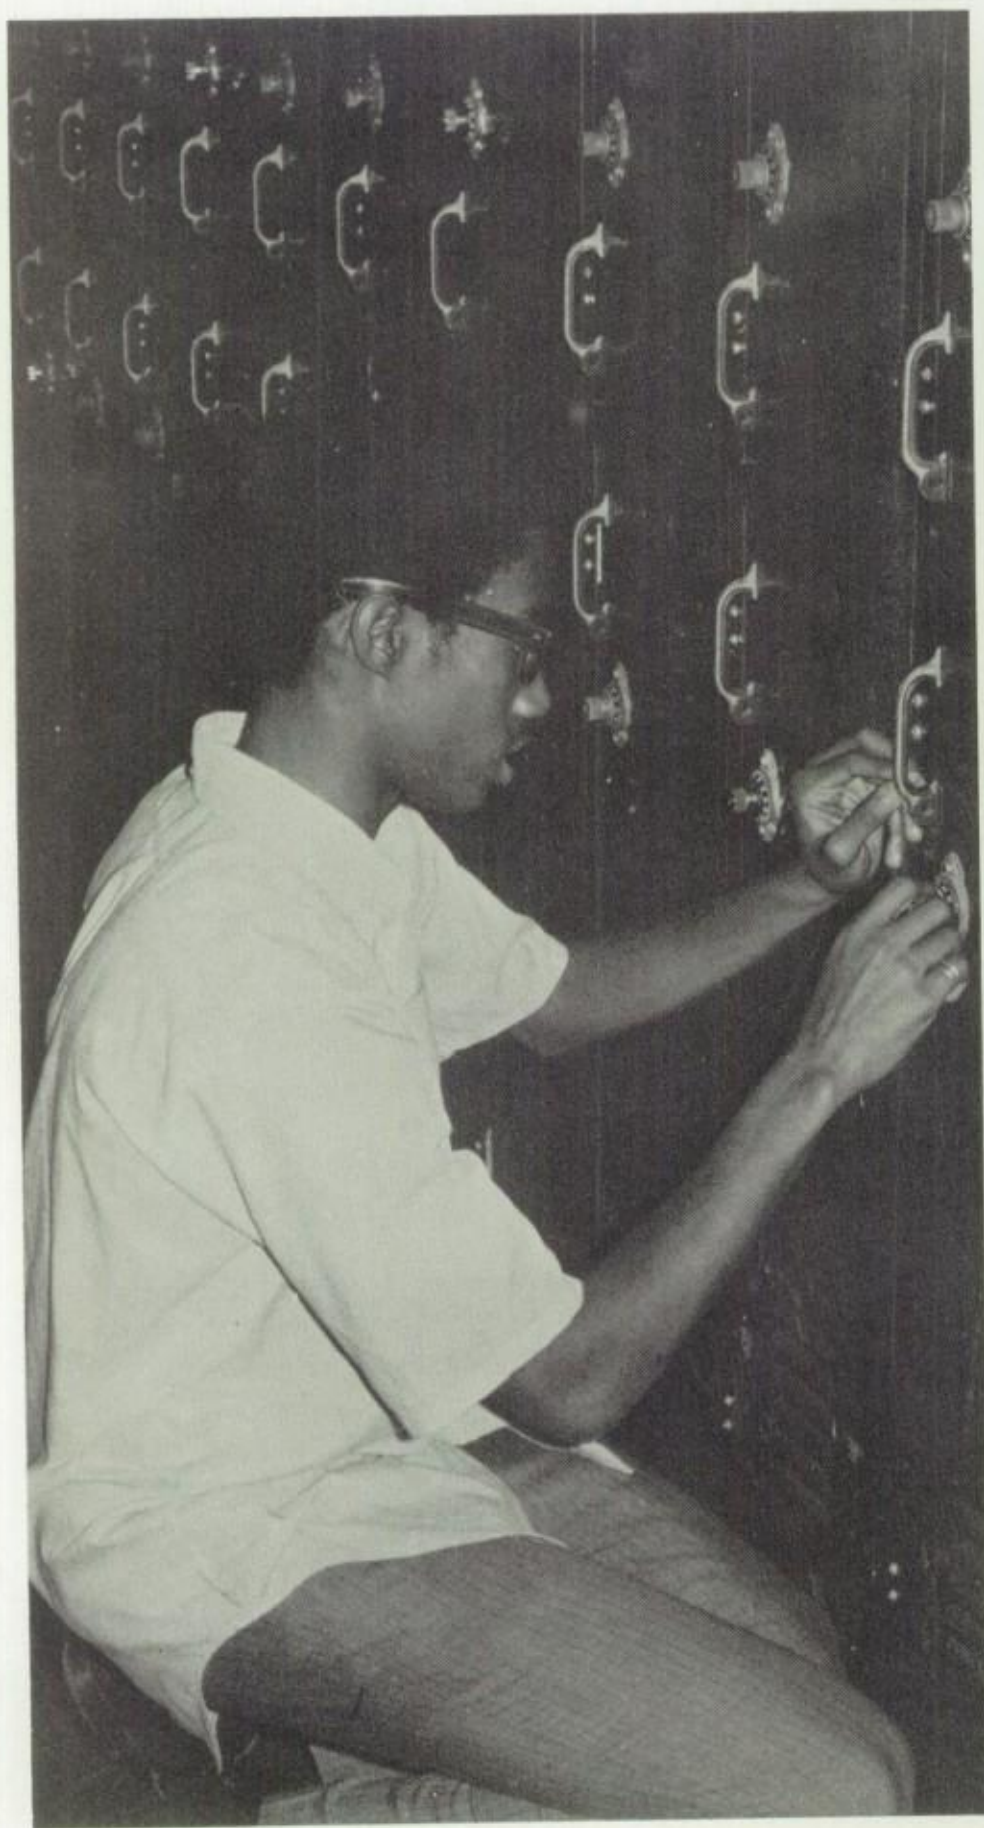

Your exuberance is so infectious that few of your students escape catching it from you . . . exuberance for GHS, exuberance for history and world events and for the process of learning . . . this alone makes you one of the best loved teachers on the hill. The past sparkles and comes alive under the touch of your keen sense of humor. Because of your genuine interest in each student and your shining personality, a warm glow emanates from room 205. For all of these qualities and many more, the 1970 Nautilus staff dedicates our book to you, Mrs. Joyce Greene.

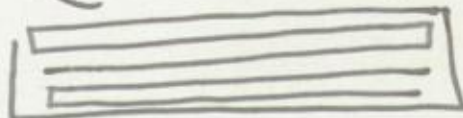

Donny - This will probably be one of the saddest things I'll do. We've known each other for so long and yet it doesn't seem like it's been since the fourth grade. We have had some damn times and right now everything's just going through my mind as one long hell-raising week-end. You've been such a help to me and I don't know what I would have done without you. I know I'm a real dumb-ass and have made you mad enough to kill me sometimes but things always work out. Someday or another we pull each other out of whatever hellacious mess we're in. I'll take this opportunity to thank you all the things you've done for

GHS welcomes new teachers, students push me out on my own, it would be all over. I hope that we'll be together until we're old, etc. and be best friends until the bitter or mellow end. We will continue in our endeavors & we still have a thousand things to see and do. I love you. God bless all of us. Love forever & ever,

Lynn

P.S. we still have Carolina to conquer!

Dear Donny,
 These past three years
 have seen a lot, Donny.
 We've argued & bullied
 & stomped, but I have ever had a real friend, it is you.
 You hold a very special place in my heart, Donny. A very special place.
 Love,
 Lisa

well, it's all over, yet really it's just beginning all again.

You & I have had some times together, haven't we?
you are one of the greatest all-around-boys that I've ever met! Always complimenting someone for something! Well tell you, there have been many a time when your baby-sitting service have saved the tenor around me! You & I are a perfect couple,

because you're both so damn happy all of the time!! I feel better next to you than I worship your Daddy, for what all you've accomplished so far! May the person
you are forever, 'cause
I'll kill you if you try to change one bit!!

See ya this summer!

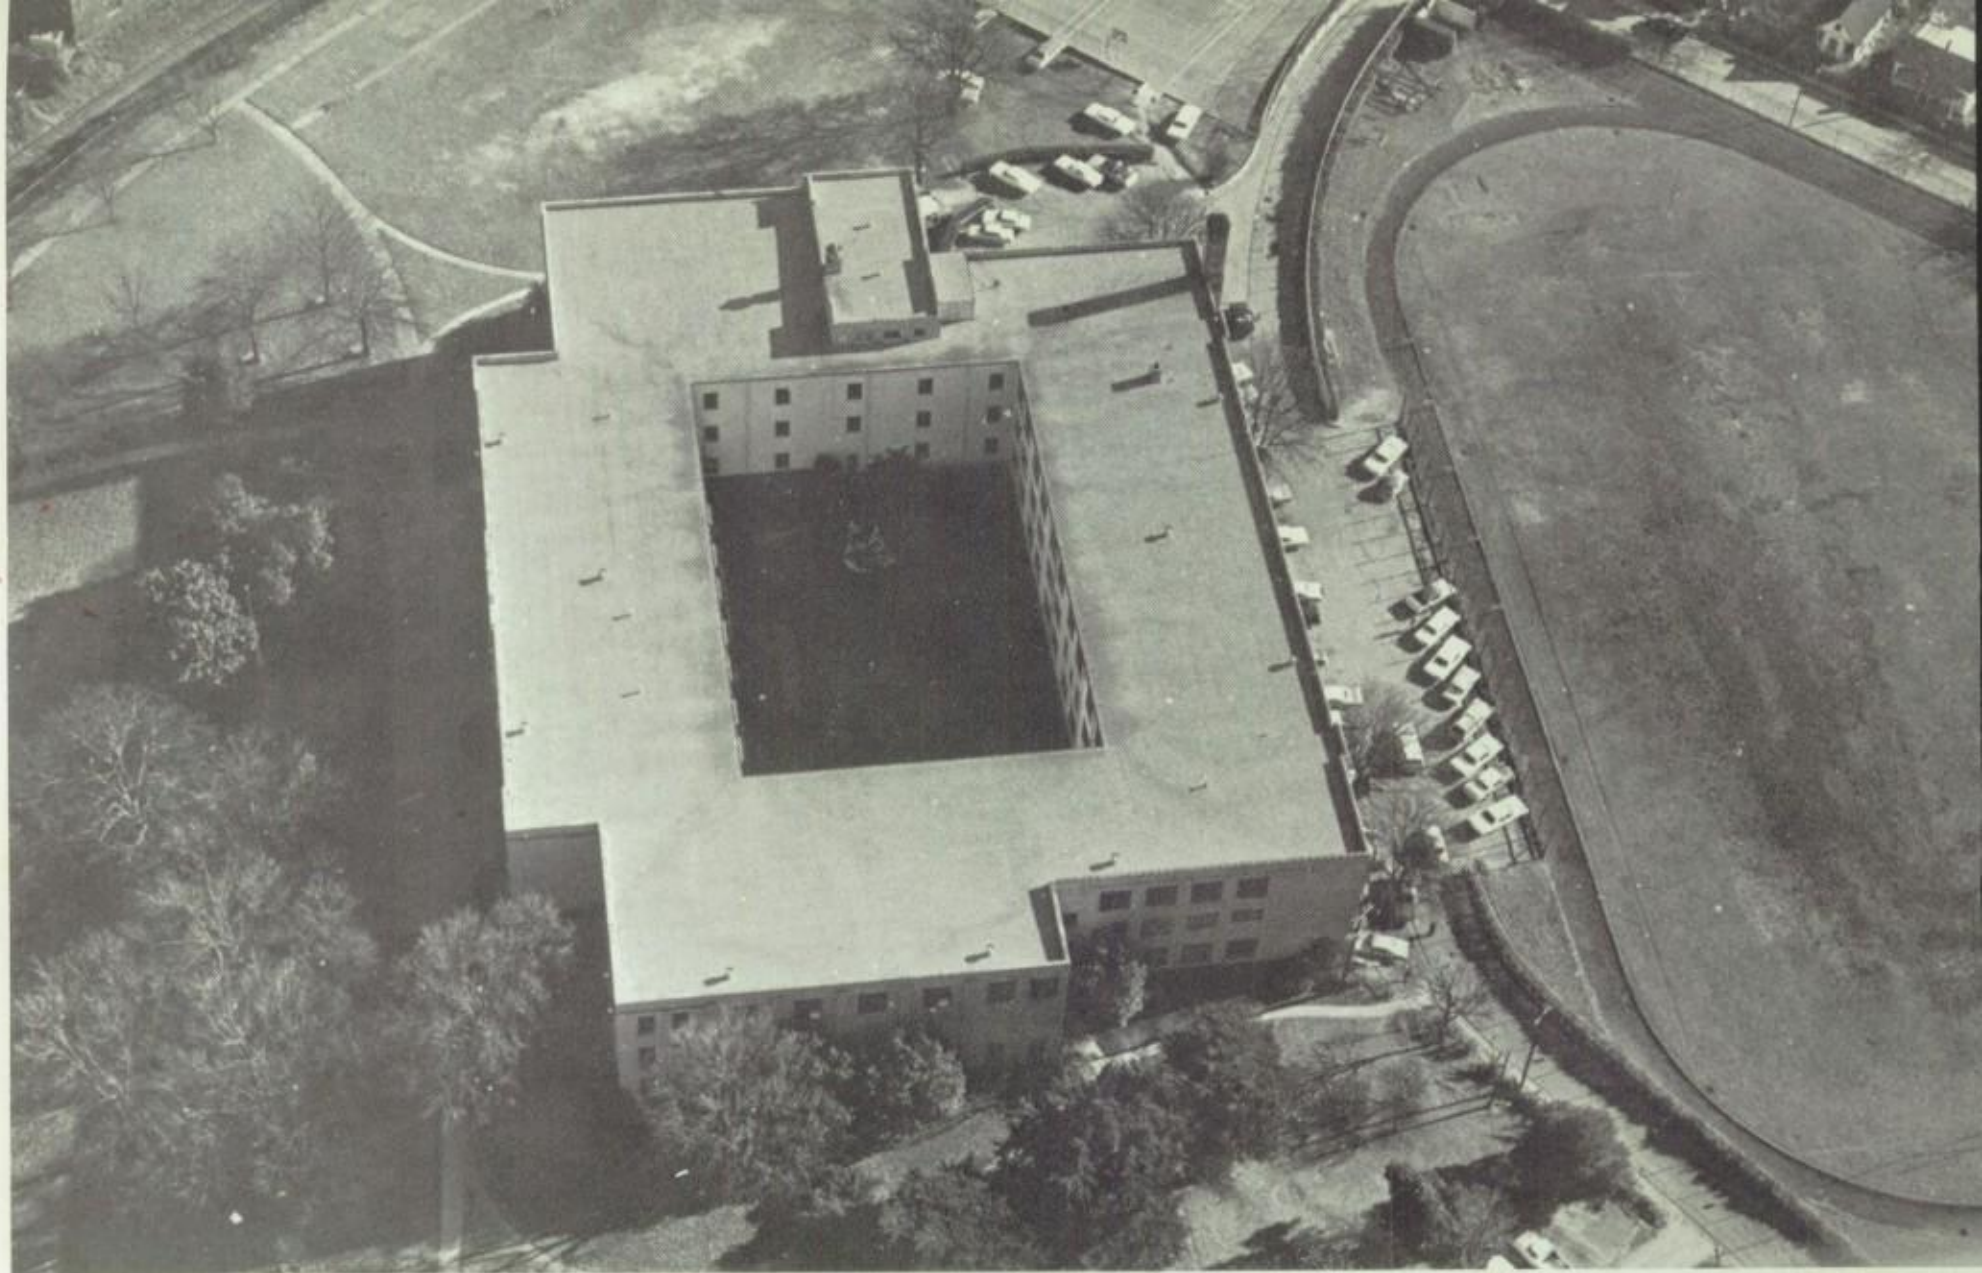

Love ya,
Justin Gilman

Donnie,
 You are a doll! It's been a great year, mainly 'cause I got to know you!
 You're always in good humor and could brighten anybody's day. Come see me at P.C. next year. Good luck in the future, even if you don't need it!

Love ya loads,

High school is over for seniors, but for underclassmen it is just beginning. The year is gone, but the 1970 Nautilus has tried to keep part of it here. We have tried to catch this year in a mere 280 pages, paying particular attention to accomplishments of the school.

The staff could not have put out the book without the special help from Mr. Robert Lentz, Vincent Bridges and Mr. Fletcher Ross. These three men took the pictures you see in this book. Also if it had not been for Mr. Morris Kenig, Mr. Earl McDermott and the rest of Key's Printing Company the Nautilus Nine would not have been able to put out a Nautilus. Special thanks also go to our adviser, Mrs. Alyce Atkinson, whose advice and guidance led the staff.

The Nautilus staff would also thank those teachers especially Mrs. Greene, to whom the book is dedicated, who cooperated with us.

The quotations in the introduction were taken from Bits o' Lit.

Dear Donny (-Sue),

I really don't know exactly what to write to you; I wish I could know you better. I've never known anyone as unique as you. I hope our friendship will grow in years to come. I guess I'll see you at USC next year! Congratulations,

Graduate-Sue! I LOVE YOU, SUE!

Donny,
Real people are awful hard to come by. If it could be a boy + it had to pick my style of living.
I'd say, "D. Moore, please." Thank you for being special to me and for letting me be your friend.
Please keep in touch next year.

Love always,
L. Carpenter

Donny,

First of all, I truly wish I could have gotten to know better because you have some many qualities that I admire, you're sincere, and warm person. Your talent have been a great asset to the school - We have all enjoyed it. Even though we may not see each other anymore, I'll always remember you.

Love always,
Anne Newton

Donny, I have found you to be a really great person.
This year has been good here in English Too.
Good luck always.

Donny,
you're really pretty cool.
Go first way. Good luck
next year & always.
Keep clear of the heart.

Donald Edward,

Alas I've found the thing that makes me whole! You already know that I love you - and that you've made me aware of things I never knew before. It all started so funny and it has grown to such magnitude that sometimes I just cry. When I look back and think of all the times we've laughed 'til the eyeliners flowed and cried because of many, many sad and happy occasions my heart glows because you made those times what they were and you and you alone are the only person that could have shared such things with me. I've thought of us together quite often and prayed about our future together even more - and the more I think of it the more I believe that God created you just for me.

I'll always love you for you as you are such a unique person. Please never leave me I would surely die - Be Beautiful and be mine

Love to you always

Anne

Donny,

Well, we finally made it through high school, but it was not easy. You're a real great guy. Best of luck at U.S.C. and in the future. Stay sweet as you always are, you cutie.

Good luck!

Love always you cutie,
